HE WILL MANAGE DAVIS CAMPAIGN

Shaver the New Chairman of Democratic Committee.

NATIVE OF WEST VIRGINIA

Advisory Committee to Conduct the Campaign Under the Personal Direction of Shaver, the Committee to Be Supplemented by District Managers in the North, South, East and West--Other Plans.

New York, July 19.—Formal announcement of the appointment of Clem Shaver of West Virginia as chairman of the Democratic national committee, and manager of the presidential campaign of John W. Davis, was made at Davis headquarters here. At the same time, it was announced that Davis will receive official notification of his nomination and deliver his acceptance speech at Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 11. The speech, like that of President Coolidge, will be delivered at 8 p. m., in order to take advantage of radio broadcasting facilities which will give him a nationwide audience at that hour.

Shaver is a native of West Virginia and is 57 years old. Since his service as chairman of the Democratic state committee of West Virginia from 1912 to 1920, his political activities have been devoted to the furtherance of the Davis candidacy. These activities, down to the time of the nomination, are declared to have been without Davis' sanction. It was to Shaver that the Democratic presidential nominee went to protest several months ago. Davis declared at that time he was not a candidate for the presidential nomination.

It was learned that the selection of Shaver had been determined upon some days ago, but the official announcement was withheld until Davis could complete a series of conferences with party leaders. The last of these was held at the home of Frank L. Polk, those present including Thomas Taggart of Indiana, George E. Brennan of Illinois and Norman H. Mack of New York.

It was announced by Mr. Shaver that plans for the campaign still were in the making and nothing could be said at this time regarding the personnel of the organization which is to be set up and which is to cover the country. From other authentic sources it was learned, however, that there will be organized an advisory committee or "board of strategy" to conduct the campaign under the personal direction of Shaver. The new chairman will have around him all of the present former chairmen of the national committee, including Cordell Hull of Tennessee, Vance McCormick of Pennsylvania, George White of Ohio and Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut. This committee will be supplemented by district managers in the east, west, north and south, and serving under these men will be subdistrict committees.

YANKEES TRIUMPH

Have Another Big Day at the Olympic Games.

Paris, July 19.—American tennis stars and boxers carried everything before them in Olympic contests.

Johnny Weismuller, Kealoha and the American women's 400-meter relay team scored triumphs in the swimming contests, all breaking records.

Helen Wills, Vincent Richards and the American mixed doubles and women's double teams won victories on the Olympic courts.

Yankee boxers, Fields, Labarra, Fee, Sales and Tripoli, all won their bouts at the Velodrome and advanced towards the finals. Fields, the American featherweight, beat Abarca, Chile, on points.

In the finals of the 100-meter back stroke, Kealoha of the United States broke the Olympic record in winning the event from Wyatt of Uniontown, Pa., with Bartha of Hungary third, and Blitz of Belgium fourth. Kealoha's time was 1:13 1-5.

Phone Rate Boost Granted.

Columbus, July 19.—The public utilities commission granted the Cincinnati and Suburban Bell Telephone company the general rate increases asked for service in Cincinnati in new tariffs filed in August, 1920. At the same time the commission disapproved of the telephone company's schedule of toll charges on calls from metropolitan Cincinnati to outlying suburbs, although it let toll charges on calls from the suburbs into Cincinnati stand.

RAPS OLD PARTIES

For Omitting Bone Dry Plank in Their Platform.

Winona Lake, Ind., July 19.—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, made a bitter attack on the two major political parties for failure to include a "bone dry" plank in their platforms, in a speech at the conference of the World League Against Alcoholism here. Wheeler warned his leaders against the "forces of corruption seeking to bring liquor back" and urged the delegates to carry on an unceasing fight for a "bone dry" country.

PROBE STARTED BY PROSECUTOR

Activities of Certain State Officials to Be Aired.

GRAND JURY ACTION SOUGHT

Attorney General Crabbe Suggests Investigation of Endowment Company, Neil House Company and a Dollings Subsidiary—Losses of Former Concern May Exceed $200,000, Receivers Say.

Columbus, July 19.—Receivers indicated that the losses of the Ohio Industrial Endowment company and the Commercial Mortgage company, the two concerns which Louis W. Josephson, attorney, charged with embezzlement, managed, may amount to approximately $200,000.

C. C. Pavey, receiver for the mortgage company, reported that a preliminary examination of the books had shown that about $100,000 in notes was missing. Further examination of the records may reveal additional losses, he said.

Josephson is charged with embezzling $92,476 from the endowment company. Further losses are being revealed, it was said at the company's offices, which may reach $150,000.

A broad investigation of the activities of certain officials in the "blue sky" department in connection with the certification of stock in numerous companies which have failed in Ohio during the last year and a half was started by Prosecuting Attorney John R. King.

In a letter to the prosecutor, Attorney General Crabbe suggests that the probe of the endowment company include the Neil House company, now in the hands of Receiver Edward Turner, and the North Carolina Farms company, a Dollings subsidiary. Receivers of the farms company have reported, Crabbe says, that the concern will not realize more than $200,000 to pay holders of $8,000,000 worth of stock.

"It is unthinkable," Crabbe's letter to the prosecutor declares, "that men should continually rob the people as they have if the departments which have access to their records are performing their duties. As all questionable stock sold throughout Ohio is either certified or exempted from certification in Columbus, it is of vital importance to the entire state that all questionable practices be broken up. I, therefore, suggest the grand jury as the medium through which the facts may be brought to light."

The securities department was requested four months ago to make an investigation of the condition of the Ohio Industrial Endowment company, the attorney general charged. Instead, he declares, they delayed investigation because Josephson had promised to sell certain of his properties, worth about $50,000, to make up some of his alleged losses.

FLOUR PRICES ASCEND

Gain of $1.20 Per Barrel Noted at Chicago Since June 9.

Chicago, July 19.—With the advance of wheat prices of wheat flour have taken an ascent. Prices were lifted 20 cents a barrel to $8 for the best known brands of Minneapolis patents, making a gain of $1.20 per barrel since June 9, and rye flour is up 75 cents to $1 for the same period.

The poor prospect for the corn crop, with the promise of a yield of 2,515,000,000 bushels on July 1, the smallest with two exceptions in 20 years, is considered responsible for the high prices prevailing for the grain. Hogs have also shared in the upward movement and touched $8.10, the highest price since last October, and nearly $1 increase lately.

All of the speculative grain markets are regarded by grain men as somewhat strained and extremely rapid price changes are expected.

Debs Urges Support of La Follette.

Chicago, July 19.—Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, from his sick bed in a sanitarium here, issued a call for the forces of Socialism to swing behind the movement to elect Senator La Follette of Wisconsin president. The progressive convention in Cleveland was in reality the American labor party "in embryo," Debs said. He ridiculed the charge that the Socialist party was "wrecked" by its decision to join with La Follette forces.

Mother and Child Perish.

Toledo, July 19.—Mrs. Ira Pollard, 31, and her daughter, Ruth, 3, perished when they were trapped in their burning home at Prairie Depot, Wood county. Mrs. Rosa Jackman was seriously burned.

JOHN J. KINDRED

New York Congressman Operating
Simian Farm in Florida.

Kindred is operating a simian farm for the study of transplantation of glands as a means of bringing about rejuvenation.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Prison School Enrollment.

Columbus, July 19.—Ohio penitentiary's intra-wall correspondence school has granted its third diploma. Three hundred additional students are pursuing courses of study and others are joining the ranks. The school, originated by Chaplain T. O. Reed for the instruction of inmates at the institution, is maintained by funds subscribed by individuals and organizations interested in the education of those confined in penal institutions. The courses are obtained through the International Correspondence school and are the same as studied by those outside the walls, Chaplain Reed explained.

To Probe Yeoman's Death.

Mt. Gilead, O., July 19.—It was announced that an inquiry into the death of Lewis Yeoman of Cardington, O., will be started July 26 by the Morrow county grand jury. Meanwhile, the widow, Mrs. Annora Yeoman, who is alleged to have confessed to administering poison tablets to her husband, is being held in county jail as a material witness. No charge of murder has yet been filed against her.

Three Children Perish.

Ironton, O., July 19.—Three girls were burned to death when fire of undetermined origin destroyed their home at Coal Grove, near here. The dead are: Amy Barber, 12, Lindsay, 10, and Carnela, 8. Albert Barber, the father, first discovered the blaze, and succeeded in carrying his wife out of the house. Flames spread so rapidly he was unable to save his children.

Ordinance Hits Jitneys.

Youngstown, O., July 19.—City council passed as an emergency measure the traffic ordinance which means the death of the jitney business in Youngstown. The measure so enlarges the congested district, so-called, where parking is prohibited, that the jitneys are forced so far from the center of the city that it will be impossible for them to operate.

Hands Blown Off.

Bellaire, O., July 19.—William Scheffler, 19, had both of his hands blown off in an explosion of powder in the Electric Supply company here. When he regained consciousness and found that both of his hands had been taken off, he pleaded with doctors to let him die.

Two Children Killed.

Cleveland, July 19.—Two children were killed by a motor truck and three were seriously injured in traffic accidents here. The dead are: Stella Kolnitsky, 8, and Paul Tropf, 7. The deaths bring the total since Jan. 1 to 75, 28 of which were children.

Burns Cause Tetanus.

Lancaster, O., July 19.—Lockjaw, developing from a burn received on the left hand July 4, caused the death of Chester Ashton, 13, only son of Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Ashton of Basil.

Frazier For La Follette.

Washington, July 19.—Senator L. J. Frazier, three times Republican governor of North Dakota, announced that he "will actively support" the candidacy of Senator Robert M. La Follette in the coming presidential campaign. Frazier declared he would bolt President Coolidge because the chief magistrate did not represent his brand of Republicanism.

TO TALK IT OVER WITH BUTLER

Coolidge to Give His Ideas of Acceptance Address.

CAMPAIGN PLANS DISCUSSED

General Headquarters to Be Maintained at Chicago Throughout the Campaign—President Said to Regard Republican Prospects as Hopeful—Publicity Director to Maintain Office in Washington.

Washington, July 19.—Republican leaders here stated that general headquarters would be maintained in Chicago throughout the campaign.

It was announced further that George Barr Baker, the director of publicity, would maintain his offices in Washington and that Chairman Butler of the Republican national committee would spend considerable time here in consultation with President Coolidge.

A white house statement declared that the president regarded the Republican situation as hopeful. Although reports of the political situation in about a dozen states have been laid before Mr. Coolidge this week, all predicting large majorities for the Republican national ticket on the basis of present indications, Mr. Coolidge is inclined to discount the predictions somewhat, especially at this stage of preliminaries to the campaign, and is said to believe no campaign can be listed finally as won or lost three and a half months before election.

President Coolidge has not yet started drafting the address he will deliver at the notification ceremonies here Aug. 14. He gave visitors the impression that in setting forth his appeal for support at the polls he would present a review of accomplishments of Republican administration since 1921, making this the primary basis of the request for support. He will talk over his ideas of the acceptance speech next week with Chairman Butler. Although John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential nominee, will deliver his keynote acceptance address prior to the date set for the Republican presidential candidate's notification, Mr. Coolidge does not propose to make his acceptance address a reply to the speech made by Mr. Davis.

In a statement made in New York Mr. Butler expressed the opinion that the oil scandals will play only an insignificant part in the campaign. He said the chief issue would be Coolidge and Dawes. The La Follette candidacy, the Republican chairman added, he considered overrated.

SAYS STATE WORSTED IN BRICK PLANT DEAL

Republican State Headquarters
Issues Statement.

Columbus, July 19.—Republican state headquarters issued a statement charging that the state welfare department recently had purchased a brick plant at Roseville, Muskingum county, paying almost double the price at which it was offered for sale a year ago.

The statement says that a year ago the plant was offered for sale at $18,000 by the Roseville Paving Brick and Terra Cotta company. No buyer for it was found, the statement continued, until about a month ago, when it was sold to the Tri-County Brick company, which July 9 transferred it to the state. The Tri-County Brick company, it was charged in the Republican statement, has among its incorporators and officers a number of personal and political friends of Welfare Director Harper.

Director Harper said he did not know whether purchase of the plant had been consummated, but admitted negotiations for it at the price named, $35,000, had been under way for some time. He said they had been carried forward by James E. Clark, manager of the manufacturing and sales division of the welfare department. Clark asserted that the deal was not closed.

Two armed bandits overpowered a bookkeeper as he unlocked the door of the Fort street branch of a Detroit bank, locked him in a wash room, took $30,000 in currency and escaped in an automobile.

ACCUSE POLITICIANS

Gangsters Said to Have Confessed to Gas Attack on Legislature.

Providence, R. I., July 19.—Gangsters of New York and Boston are alleged by a local newspaper to have confessed they were hired by Republicans to break the recent filibuster in the state legislature. According to the newspaper, the gangsters are the men who introduced bundles of gauze and paper treated with powerful chemicals into the legislative hall during the filibuster, causing several men to be overcome. The men said they were hired by John Toomey of Providence and paid by William C. Pelky, chairman of the Republican state central committee, according to the newspaper. The gas-saturated papers were discovered in the senate chamber after several senators had become so ill they had to be treated in a hospital. The senate had been deadlocked since it convened the first of the year. Bitter arguments between the Republicans and the Democrats caused the deadlock, and so evenly divided was the strength that none of the state bills could be passed.

FORCED TO DESCEND

British Around-the-World Flier Found
Safe on Island.

Tokio, July 19.—Forced to descend, Major A. Stuart MacLaren, missing British world flyer, was found safe on Urupp Island, in the Kuriles group, north of Japan. The airman had covered about half the distance from Hokkaido to Paramushiro Island when forced down. He had just begun the most perilous part of his round-the-world flight—the crossing of the Pacific in short jumps from one blizzard-whipped, frozen island to the next. Major MacLaren had been missing nearly 48 hours.

Advices from the Isakaze indicated that comparatively minor difficulties forced MacLaren to descend and that he will be able to proceed as soon as the weather becomes favorable and his plane is repaired again.

POMERENE'S CHARGE

Counsel For Accused Oil Magnates
Seek to Delay Trials.

Washington, July 19.—Pleas of abatement filed by Sinclair and the Dohenys, oil magnates, were merely for the purpose of delaying their trial, according to Atlee Pomerene, special counsel. "They certainly are illegal, because the defendants had not even been arraigned at the time they were filed," Pomerene stated.

Pomerene and O. J. Roberts, his colleague, have filed motions to dismiss all the pleas on this ground. This motion may be heard next week. "The hearing on the Teapot Dome lease has been set for Oct. 7, at Cheyenne, but so far we have been unable to get a hearing assigned for the Doheny suit," Pomerene stated.

Except for the hearing next week on the motion to have the pleas in abatement to the criminal indictments thrown out, it appears unlikely that there will be any further activity in the oil cases before October.

MANY LIVES SAVED BY U. S. LIBERALITY

Established Public Health Measures in Serbia.

New York.—"American methods of fighting disease and promoting public health through sanitary measures and public education are rapidly being adopted throughout Serbia as a result of the reconstruction work done there since the war by the Serbian Child Welfare Association of America," said William J. Doherty, executive secretary of the association.

"The health work done by the association in Serbia was one of the most important, if not the most important phase of activities which the generosity of the American people made possible. The need of Serbia, like other European allies, for aid, was almost as urgent immediately following the war as during the course of the conflict itself. Specters of disease, epidemics, exposure and starvation stalked through the devastated regions of Serbia.

Nurses' School Established.

"Had America, with its resources of money and trained personnel, failed to respond to Serbia's appeal the post-war losses of life in that country would at least have equaled those of the period of conflict.

"Among the outstanding results of the health work instituted by the Serbian Child Welfare Association of America were the establishment of the first training school for nurses in Serbia; the organization of a health workers' school for short intensive training of nurses and other health workers, the publication of a textbook on hygiene, home and community sanitation, for which King Alexander himself wrote an introduction and assisted in placing in public schools throughout Serbia, and the formation of domestic science schools, which offered Serbian young women short courses in house-keeping, cooking, sewing, home sanitation and personal hygiene.

Three Gifts Made.

"Soon after beginning work in Serbia the association enlisted the interest of the Serbian ministry of health, the medical association and various Serbian public health and welfare groups in establishing the training school. An initial gift of 350,000 dinars (a dinar normally is equal to 19.3 cents) was made for the purpose by the association. Shortly afterward the Serbian Red Cross contributed 500,000 dinars and the association raised its gift to meet this sum.

"Important as was the work of the association in saving the lives and providing for 25,000 orphans and in helping to rebuild more than 300 schoolhouses in Serbia, the health work which the organization did will, in the opinion of American experts, make an even more lasting impress on the future of this little Balkan country, which suffered worse, in proportion to its size and population, than any other country during the war."

Claims Jap Has Found Food to Add to Stature

Tokyo.—Victor Heiser, director of the Far East Rockefeller foundation, said that Doctor Sakke of the Japanese Institute of Nutrition is about to startle the medical world with a discovery of a fish powder to increase human stature.

"He has proved it in animals, and is now demonstrating it in humans," Mr. Heiser said. "I am convinced it is genuine and practical."

The American, who is consulting the authorities regarding establishing a research hospital financed by the foundation, says the anti-American agitation does not affect the plan.

"National questions do not concern us," Mr. Heiser declared. "We are now working in 37 countries, showing that we have no preference for races or nations."

The main work of the foundation in Japan will be to demonstrate that the annual death rate is unnecessary, due solely to the unbalanced diet and the lack of the use of preventatives.

Eleven Years in Mail

Springfield, Mass.—A Christmas greeting card mailed on December 23, 1912, in the neighboring village of Feeding Hills, was received a few days ago by Miss Olive H. Causey, eleven and a half years after it was mailed and more than six years after the death of the sender, George Hudson. Miss Causey has announced. Where the card has spent the interval postal officials do not know.

To Take Baby and Goat on Voyage

Anacortes, Wash.—A married couple with their baby and a cat and a goat will soon be afloat and northward, bound from here to Skagway, Alaska. The goat will supply milk for the baby, who is going along with Mr. and Mrs. Linden B. Pentz, its parents, on the 1,000-mile trip in a small catboat.

According to their plans, they will arrive in the North just about time for the babe to cut his teeth on a piece of grizzly bear hide or mountain goat steak. Each night the tiny motor boat will be beached and the goat permitted to forage while the family enjoys sleep in a tent.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

HAPPINESS

UNTIL he was forty a neighbor of mine lived a happy, active, useful life. He had a good job, at which he earned a salary sufficient to support his family comfortably. He was interested in community affairs, he was a useful citizen, he was enthusiastic over paying for the pretty house he had built, and his future seemed bright and satisfying.

Then, unfortunately, his aunt died and left him $50,000. He gave up his job immediately, quit work and set out to enjoy himself. The income from his legacy was scarcely as much as his salary had previously been, and as his leisure increased his desires multiplied quite disproportionately. He became discontented, nomadic, a lazy, useless citizen, who is happy nowhere. He spends his winters in Florida and his summers camping out in the woods or drifting up and down the river in a motorboat. He is bringing up his two boys to be unhappy loafers like himself. But he is a pathetic figure. He has not learned the lesson that there is no real happiness without work. The most unhappy, discontented people I have ever known are those who have money enough to live on without following any regular daily occupation, and who put in their time looking for pleasure. The woman who has no occupation but bridge whist is a miserable creature, and the man who is trying to pay his obligations to the world by playing golf or billiards is an unhappy, discontented grouch. The most wretched men in the world are those who give up work before they are compelled to do so.

Sometimes when the days are hot and long and the tasks are hard and life seems too full of duties for us to fulfill them all, we might be helped if we stopped long enough to realize that real happiness is always synonymous with work. It is the hard job, the difficult and often the disagreeable task that brings us joy in the accomplishment.

The greatest blessing that God ever bestowed upon fallen man was the privilege of earning his bread by the sweat of his brow. It was the best possible substitute for paradise.

Four men were wounded when bullets from the coast guard cutter Arcata, seeking rum smugglers, pierced the gasoline tank of their motorboat in Mutiny bay, north of Seattle, Wash.

Elephant Fierce Fighter

The list of hunters who have conquered lions at desperately close quarters, who have been actually mauled by them and have yet survived, is long. Far fewer in the annals of African exploration and hunting are those who have come into direct personal contact with an angry elephant in his native wilds and have lived to tell the tale.

Cloth From Dog's Hair

The beautiful white hair of the Samoyed dog has been woven into cloth and the commercial possibilities of the finished product have been successfully demonstrated by the Royal Society of Arts in London. The hair used was from the combings, the undercoat that falls naturally twice a year.

Boston's Proud Position

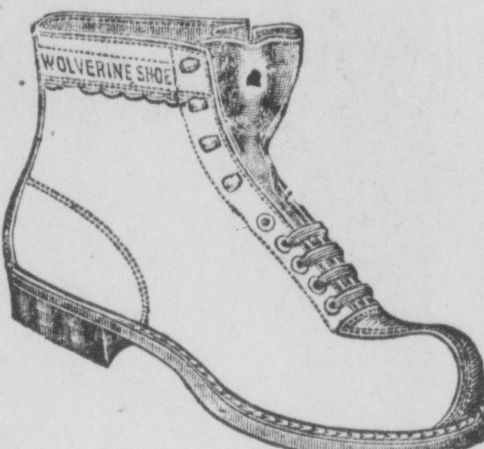

On being offered a Boston joke the editor of a humorous weekly proceeded to take the alleged humorist to task in no uncertain manner. "I don't see any point to these whams about the highbrow proclivities of Boston," declared the editor. "They're out of date, to say the least. Boston has won her share of pennants and was once the home of John L. Sullivan."

Wild Boar Incased in Ice

An avalanche sweeping across the Bourg d'Oslans road near Rochetalle, France, recently dropped off a huge block of ice which was found to contain the body of a wild boar. The animal had been swept up as the avalanche started on its wild career and was frozen within it.

South African Witch Doctor Cannot Lose

When a South African native becomes ill the last thing that occurs to him is that natural causes have anything to do with his malady. "N'de takatiwe," he cries out in great mental anguish. "N'de takatiwe—I have been bewitched." Thereupon he does one of two things. He either seeks some quiet place where he may lie down and give up the ghost, or else he carries his troubles to a witch doctor and beseeches him to drive out the evil spirits that he believes the magic of some spiteful enemy to have placed in occupation of his body. writes G. K. Chesterton in the Continental edition of the London Mail.

Upon payment of a suitable fee the witch doctor takes up his client's case in a manner vaguely resembling a barrister accepting a brief. While the barrister takes down his law books, searches for precedents and tunes up his eloquence, the witch doctor does even stranger things, such as the throwing about of bones, the lighting of a magic fire and the murmuring of incantations that are older than the hills and very nearly as old as some of our legal precepts.

Should the patient get better he regards it as a triumph for his consulting wizard, and, overwhelming that individual with presents, he goes his merry way. On the other hand, should he get worse and die, it becomes obvious to all that the magic of the unspeakable enemy has gained the victory and the only thing his friends can do is to see that the poor wretch gets an adequate burial.

Finds House Built of Mud 200 Years Ago

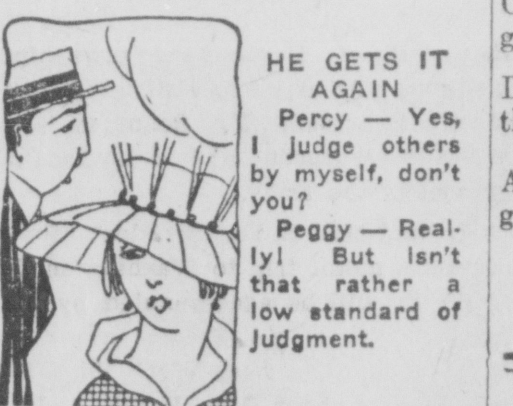

After weathering the sunshine and storms of perhaps two centuries, a two-story house, built of mud from foundation to roof, has been discovered by a Philadelphia building inspector and condemned.

Close examination of the unique structure, which stands at 322 Buttonwood street, revealed that builders of 200 years ago used the same methods of pouring mud into wooden molds as is used today in the construction of modern concrete buildings.

To the generations of men, women and children that have passed it, the house has stood as a landmark, but not one of noteworthy history. A week ago it was to the passing citizenry only a house on a street, "that's been there for many years."

Queen Elizabeth's Tree
Over 300 years ago Queen Elizabeth planted a tree at Hingham, England. Later on immigrants established the new town of Hingham in Massachusetts. The tree grew and flourished and eventually died and the town fathers of old Hingham had the tree sawed up and three chairs were made from the lumber. One of the three has been presented to the Old First church of Hingham, Mass., the oldest place of public worship in the American colonies. The church, built in 1681, still stands on its original site. The chairs are the most recent of several remembrances sent to new Hingham from old Hingham, which from 1633 to 1639 furnished many of the earliest settlers of the Massachusetts town. In 1911 Ambassador James Bryce presented the town a stone from the village green of the old town.

Epitaph Premature
His own epitaph was read by R. Soglietti when he visited a battle ground and military cemetery at Rambovillers, in the Vosges. Soglietti discovered a tombstone, surmounted by a white cross, together with that of his old regiment. Soglietti had fallen on that very battlefield in 1914, severely wounded, but had eventually recovered. He is now in receipt of a pension as being permanently disabled. He has reported the matter to the military authorities, and has requested to be allowed to live a little longer.

HERRICK REFRIGERATORS

HERRICK DRY AIR SYSTEM REFRIGERATOR

The Big Difference In Refrigerators

The main object of any refrigerator, of course, is the preservation of foods. The refrigerator that will keep foods in perfect condition longest is naturally the refrigerator you want—provided it doesn't increase your ice bills.

The Herrick answers those requirements with facts—not claims. And it does even more. It actually decreases your ice bills while giving you more effective food preservation.

And why? Simply because the Herrick is far more than an ice box—far more than a cold storage place. It is built on the scientifically demonstrated principle that more than merely cold air is necessary to keep foods in good condition for any great length of time.

Perhaps the biggest essentials to scientifically correct refrigeration are—

- No. 1. Circulation of cold dry air.
- No. 2. Effective Insulation.
- No. 3. Air-tight construction.

That the Herrick has these necessary essentials is a demonstrated fact.

Many proofs of the truth are visible even to the least informed purchaser. Others are hidden within the walls of the refrigerator, but nevertheless there, performing their functions so important to good health and economy.

WOMEN VOTERS

Will They Utilize the Ballot to the Same
Extent as Men?

Will women ever "participate in all phases of political life on a basis of actual as well as nominal equality with men?" Assistant Professors Stuart A. Rice and Malcolm M. Willey of Dartmouth college discuss various aspects of that question in the July number of Current History. They have handled a highly controversial subject in a scholarly way. Their preliminary conclusions are a highly interesting contribution to a discussion which will be with us as long as universal suffrage prevails. They do not answer the question, contending themselves with stating that "there is nothing in the first years of the universal suffrage experiment to force the conclusion that this cannot come to pass."

First of all, the evidence seems to show that "women have not utilized the ballot to the same extent as men," possibly on account of their minor influence within the parties, their lack of experience and the novelty of the great experiment. General estimates of their inactivity are borne out by figures from Illinois, the one state where the votes of men and women are segregated. In the presidential election of 1920, 74.1 per cent of the eligible men voted and but 46.5 of the qualified women. Making proper allowance for variable factors, Professors Rice and Willey find that in 21 northern and western states between 34.7 and 46.5 of the women voters went to the polls, a proportion "markedly less than the corresponding figures for the men. The tradition that woman's place is anywhere but in the voting booth appears to persist."

When they do vote, the women seem to look at problems not exactly as men do. They apparently favor prohibition more than their brothers do. In Chicago, they have been bolder, more intelligent and less partisan. They seem to be less eager than men for radical changes and "lean to the support of 'moral' causes." Nevertheless, in Oregon women "were opposed to the eight-hour day for women, to a single tax, to proportional representation, to the abolition of the state senate, to extending certain functions of government and perhaps to spending public money."

On collateral subjects, party influence and office holding, there is plenty of direct evidence of their present position, whatever may be the inference to be drawn. They hold few posts of responsibility and high salary. Men run the national committees and conventions. Women have received senatorial nominations only when the chances of success were negligible. The Woman Citizen records 84 woman legislators elected in 30 states in 1922, as against 10,000 men. The two woman representatives in Washington were elected to fill the unexpired terms of a father and a husband. Of 788 county offices in New Jersey, women occupy 19. In North Dakota 422 county offices are men and two women. Forty of the 272 county officers in Wyoming are women. In short, "where salary and power are concerned, a man fills the office chair."—Boston Herald.

FORD CARS SOLD

General Prosperity Indicated in Reports
Thruout Country.

Sales reports from the 34 American branches of the Ford Motor company show that over a million Ford cars and trucks were sold at retail during the first six months of 1924. The actual figure is 1,036,978, which exceeds the total retail sales for the same period in 1923 by 133,095, an average gain of 22,182 sales per month.

A comparison between Ford sales in 1924 and 1923 not only indicates a remarkable increase in the country's buying power but also shows that this growth continues month by month. In every instance the monthly sales in 1924 have shown a substantial increase over the corresponding month in 1923. In June they reached 170,747 which was approximately 10,000 ahead of June sales in the preceding year.

These figures are for retail sales in the United States alone and do not take into consideration the sales made by foreign Ford branches and associated companies, the majority of which assemble cars from American made parts.

Perhaps the most encouraging sign of the times lies in the fact that these sales have been spread very evenly thruout the country and indicate a general prosperity that is not confined to any particular section.

TOLL OF DEATH
WIPE OUT FEUD

Latest Killing in Colson-Ball
Warfare in Kentucky
Nearly Closes Chapter.

Lexington, Ky.—The most efficacious way of stopping the mountain feud apparently is by killing off the fighters. This practically has been accomplished in the noted Colson and Ball factional warfare in Bell county. The Colsons have had the worst of it on the surface.

The latest flare in this long story of feuding troubles came the other night, when George Colson went into the drug store in Middlesboro and found Floyd Ball therein. Four witnesses tell substantially the same story. The two men, both known for their determination, began to quarrel. Then Ball is reported to have told Colson to "get out," that he did not want any trouble.

Witnesses say that then Colson reached for his pistol, but Ball, in the nomenclature of the gun user, "beat him to it," and opened fire. Colson was taken to the local hospital, where he died a few hours later.

Ball made no attempt to escape and was arrested immediately. He claimed self-defense.

Feud Marked by Fairness.
The Colson-Ball trouble is not the average factional warfare in the mountains in that the Colsons and Balls are people of culture and possessed of wealth. It is not the case of assassinations in their fight—it has been generally proved to be the case that the battlers met each other and with guns in hand fought it out, give and take fashion, with luck to the best marksman.

The feud had been quiescent, for a time, until about three years ago, when in a sudden outbreak Ira Ball shot Doyle Colson to death. The enemies champed their bits over that for a little while and then George Colson and Ira Ball met. There was no doubt in the mind of either man that the other meant to kill, so each drew his pistol promptly, but Colson killed Ball. Then the two clans met one summer day in the Bell county courthouse at Pineville.

The trial in which both sides were interested was to be heard, and members of both factions appeared early. Leaders kept the most hot-headed of the gunmen apart, but finally someone made a sharp remark. There was a clash, and in a moment guns seemed to be flashing in every direction.

Riley Ball was slain. Clay Colson, college man and a clean-cut young fellow, was shot, as were Frank Ball and John Hurst of the Ball clan. After a long court trial, during which each side tried to place the blame on the other, Floyd Ball was given a penitentiary sentence for shooting John Hurst in the courthouse battle, but Gov. E. P. Morrow pardoned him.

George Colson was sentenced to the state penitentiary for killing Ira Ball, but his sentence had been reversed and he was awaiting a new trial when he was killed by Floyd Ball.

Colsons' Picturesque Career.

The Colsons have been more picturesque than the Balls. The first of the noted Colsons was Col. David Colson, who 25 years ago was one of the state's leading political figures and prominent in official affairs. He was an officer in the Spanish-American war, having resigned his seat in congress at Washington to go to war. While in his post of duty Colonel Colson offended Ethelbert Scott, another young officer, and Scott, while the two were at Anniston, Ala., in camp, shot Colson. The latter refused to ask that Scott be disciplined, and for a time it was thought the ill feeling had blown over. Scott was a nephew of Governor, later Senator, W. O. Bradley.

Then came the political campaign of 1899, when Senator William Goebel was Democratic aspirant for the governorship. One night Colson and Scott met in the basement of a hotel. Scott was shot to death, as were two or three other men.

86,767 Immigrants
Go to Brazil in 1923

Washington.—According to the immigration department of the Brazilian government, 102,142 persons entered Brazilian ports during 1923, of which 86,767 were immigrants, as against 34,821 in 1922, an increase of 51,946 or 149.2 per cent. This increase is remarkable in face of the conditions ruling during the past year.

The nationalities of the 86,767 immigrants entering are: Portuguese, 31,866; Italians, 15,839; Spaniards, 10,141; Germans, 8,254; Turkish Arabs, 2,480; Syrians, 2,217; Austrians, 2,162; ex-Brazilians, 2,135; Rumanians, 1,928; Poles, 1,105; Japanese, 896; Hungarians, 820; Latvians, 784; Yugoslavs, 775; Russians, 774; French, 609; English, 573; Swiss, 564; Czechoslovaks, 539; Argentines, 429; North Americans, 233; Ukrainians, 176; Uruguayans, 166; Lithuanians, 139; Hollanders, 130; Armenians, 128; Greeks, 101; and 633 persons from 30 other nations, making a total of 57 nationalities represented in the total.

GARDEN PARTY

Successful Affair Will Net $145 for
Swimming Pool.

The most brilliant event of the mid-summer was the garden party given Friday evening by the Business and Professional Women's club for the benefit of the swimming pool. The receipts are about $175 and of this it is hoped $145 will be clear.

Thru the courtesy of the county commissioners the party was held on the court house lawn and Sheriff and Mrs. Robert J. Young lent every assistance to make the event the success it was.

There is no more ideal spot and the setting was most picturesque. Gladioli from the gardens of Dr. B. R. Bales beautified the many small tables and electric lights hooded in Japanese lanterns gave the Oriental effect. The program of dance music by the Kibler orchestra was an additional charm which held the crowd until moonlight shed its silvery glow upon the scene.

The club is indebted to the orchestra, Dr. B. R. Bales, Sheriff Young, H. G. Stevenson and Mason Bros., furniture companies, F. A. Lynch, N. G. & W. G. Hamilton, the Circleville Ice Co., Ohio Utilities Co., the newspapers, the commissioners, Carl F. Seitz and the public in general for favors and patronage.

Consumption of Butterflies

The natives of Australia consume every year millions of butterflies. These insects live largely in the mountain rocks. The natives catch them by lighting wood fires, the smoke of which suffocates them. The natives collect them in baskets, put them in the oven and, after having sifted them to get rid of the wings, make them into a sort of tart, much appreciated among connoisseurs.

AMUSEMENTS

The Paramount picture, "His Children's Children," a picturization of the famous novel by Arthur Train, will be the feature at the Met theater next Monday to remain three days. The story is a sensational American Melodrama, featuring Bebe Daniels, Dorothy Mackall, James Rennie and George Fawcett. It is the life story of three generations of a prominent New York family and has been produced in an unusually gripping and vivid manner. It is a tremendous Sam Wood production. Included, among others in the strong supporting cast are Mary Eaton of the Ziegfeld Follies, Mahlon Hamilton, Lawrence D'Orsay, Warner Oland, Hale Hamilton and John Davidson. There are many scenes of strong dramatic interest.

Colony of New Haven
Had First Blue Laws

In 1715 it was ordered by the general court that a suitable man, be appointed to construct a code of laws for the New Haven colony. The appointment fell to Governor Eaton and he was instructed by the general court to study the laws of Massachusetts colony, and also the "Discourse on Civil Government in a New Plantation," by Reverend Mister Gorton, to aid him in his work.

Governor Eaton promptly issued a code of laws, many of which were from the Massachusetts code. Duly presented to the elders of correct jurisdiction, the fruit of the governor's toil was by them approved and passed, says the Detroit News. The general court, moreover, ordered 500 copies to be printed for the New Haven colonists.

At this period of history New Haven was an entirely different and separate colony from Connecticut, the latter being made up of the towns of Hartford, Windsor and Wethersfield and wild adjacent territory.

The term "blue laws," therefore, undoubtedly came from the fact that the first printed laws of either colony, being those of Governor Eaton, were enveloped in blue paper. So the code of Governor Eaton comprised the real and original blue laws and since these were enacted for New Haven colony it is further established that they should be called the "blue laws of New Haven colony" and not of Connecticut. The laws of other colonies were also used in constructing the code and many of them are at the present time upon the statute books of Connecticut. Many of the better laws of that state today are founded on them.

Monarch Bows Before
Mayor of London City

All English towns cling to ancient traditions, ancient rights, some of which, of course, are maintained because of legal necessity, writes Temple Bouvier in World Traveler Magazine. The city of London always has been tenacious and jealous of its old rights. In the "good old days" the stout city fathers didn't hesitate to oppose, and fight if necessary, the king himself. Even nowadays, when the king visits "The City" (which is what you call "downtown," where the banks and the big traders hang up their hats) on days of ceremony he surrenders his sword—only by gesture, it is true—to the lord mayor of London, who meets him at Temple Bar. In days of old, when kings were bolder, the doughty bankers and merchants of "The City" weren't taking any chances and wouldn't stand for the king with armed men passing the gates that marked the city's frontier.

Today, the lord mayor, representing the ancient liberties and rights of his mighty city, is given the password of the Tower of London by the governor of the Tower under "the king's sign manual," which is to say that King George actually puts his "John Hancock" to the list of words making up the military password over a period of three months.

Freezing Eyeglasses

Since optical glasses cannot be cut unless they are fixed in an immovable position, it has been the practice to glue them to iron frames of various sizes and shapes. Until a few years ago the plates of glass, when finished, were knocked off the frames by means of a light mallet, the blow being delivered cautiously upon the edges of the plates. Naturally enough, this was a delicate and dangerous bit of work, and unless performed by the most expert of workmen, resulted, of course, in the injury of the lens. But the discovery was made that the blocks of crystal separated more readily when they had been exposed to a certain degree of cold. The result has been what might be called a revolution in the making of special glasses.—Washington Star.

Obsolete Documents

The folding rooms of the capitol are filled with thousands of publications that are either obsolete or worthless for public distribution, the public printer declares. In the storage vaults of the capitol may be found annual reports on finance dating as far back as 1876, agricultural yearbooks of the crop of 1879 (although new additions are printed at the rate of 400,000 copies annually), reports on the Paris exposition of 1878, ten-year-old nautical almanacs, prayers of the chaplain of the Sixty-second congress, army regulations dating back to 1895 and thousands of obsolete congressional directories.

Knew Their Origin

A young woman recently received instruction in the art of Indian basketry, and had made several copies of Indian baskets of which she was very proud. A friend, who had been living in Arizona, called upon the young woman, who showed the baskets with considerable pride.

"They are really very well done," commented the visitor, "but, of course, they are not the real Indian baskets." "Why, Mrs. Robinson," indignantly exclaimed the maker, "how can you say that when I just told you that I made them myself?"

And Father Fleed

"Father," said little Algernon, "why has my hair grown so much longer than yours, when yours has grown so much longer than mine?"

$22,000,000 IN ANNUAL
INTEREST CHARGES SAVED

United States Treasury Issues New Securities to Take Place of High-Rate Paper.

Washington.—The June fiscal operations of the treasury, while ranking among the smallest of postwar financial issues, will have a wider permanent effect in the way of cuts in fixed expenditures of the government than most of the quarterly operations in the last five years.

Treasury experts have calculated that a saving of approximately $22,000,000 in annual interest charges will result from the change in the public debt situation accomplished in June.

About $150,000,000 in new securities have gone on the market from the treasury this month, but proceeds from these with balances on hand and payments in the second tax installment will retire something like $443,000,000 in treasury notes and tax certificates which matured June 15.

The tax certificates bore 4 per cent and the treasury notes, which were issued in 1921, carried 5½ per cent interest. The new certificates pay only 2½ per cent interest, the lowest rate of any government security since the issue of Panama canal bonds.

At the same time the British government made a payment of $69,000,000, which, under the law, must be used to retire the American wartime debt. That payment therefore will cut off $69,000,000 of Liberty bonds bearing an average of almost 4 per cent interest.

While the cut in the total debt brought about by this one operation appears as a drop in the bucket when considered alongside the national debt of more than $21,000,000,000, treasury officials point with satisfaction to the amount of interest that would have to be paid, and that means taxes to be raised, provided there was no reduction in the debt.

The treasury has issued only $150,000,000 in new securities, while it has retired and destroyed a total of $521,000,000 in outstanding debt.

U. S. Army Doctors Find
Whooping Cough Cure

Washington.—Members of the army "gas house gang" swung their black-jacks on another disease. They announced discovery of a cure for whooping cough.

No longer must fond mothers wait for the ailment to "run its course"—a traditional "course" of six weeks. Army ingenuity and chlorine gas will send Johnny and Mary back to school in four-days' time.

Experiments at Edgewood arsenal, Md., where the Chemical Warfare service has its laboratories, have established the efficacy of chlorine gas for a number of bronchial ailments.

The whooping cough treatment is very like that which President Coolidge took in Washington for his cold. The only difference is that it requires an hour's inhalation of gas for four successive days—and that the ratio of gas and air is slightly varied.

Coincident with the announcement of the new cures, army physicians predicted that a few years will see a special gas chamber in every school, with specially trained nurses to administer the treatment. The result, they say, will be a higher standard of health among school children and the virtual disappearance of bronchial and nasal epidemics.

Sexton a Useful Man,
Rings Bell, Writes Boy

Munich.—Schoolboys in a Munich suburb were instructed recently to write a composition about the sexton in the local church, and the following effort attracted so much attention that it is being reproduced in many Bavarian newspapers:

"The sexton is a useful man. He rings the bells at five in the morning so the people know they may sleep two hours longer. At eleven he rings the bells again, indicating to the farmers in the field that they should become hungry. In the evening there is more bell ringing, which indicates to small children that they will get their ears boxed if they do not run home rapidly. Sometimes the sexton is very troublesome, especially when he rings at night to announce a fire. The sexton thrives on weddings, christenings and the dead. He earns the most money through death. Therefore he is glad when many people die."

Nigerians Prospering
Under Rule of British

London.—An example of the benefits of rule by a large power over an indigent people is found in the case of the British domination in Nigeria, says Sir Hugh Clifford, the Nigerian governor, who is in England on leave.

The natives of Nigeria for the most part are peaceful and contented and living on a scale of life they have never known before, Sir Hugh says.

The British rule has destroyed the slave trade and stopped tribal warfare, with the result that the people are expending their energies in other and more beneficial directions. They have become good farmers or industrial workers and are capable of operating farms without government supervision.

The most noticeable effect of British rule, however, has been in the commerce of the colony. The exports now average nearly $50,000,000 annually, which is ten times the estimated value for 1913.

Like French Mode
With Few Changes
American Women Favor
Silhouette and Trimming
Offered by Paris.

The burden of going forward has shifted from the ingenious hand of the Paris designer to the graceful shoulders of the fashionable woman, observes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune. A short time ago the Paris couturier was industriously offering his artistic product to a waiting world. New ideas, some quite radical, were exhibited—certain old motifs were retained, and descriptions and sketches of the new Paris suggestions were broadcast to wherever smart women gathered. The readers know that the new Paris silhouette is straight and affectedly simple, that French skirts miss the ground by some fourteen inches, that elaboration is the essence of the current mode and that plait, flounce and tunic are its principal manifestations. They have seen sketches of the beltless frock and of the low waistline, the severe tailleur and the three-quarter length coat.

The next and, to most women, the most important phase of the springtime mode concerns the extent to which the recent innovations will be indorsed. For femininity, despite ideas to the contrary, does not leap boldly from one extreme to another, preferring rather to slowly absorb new ideas and adopt them gradually and in a modified form.

Consider first the skirt length, which has been a much mooted question since the revolutionary days of the war. One season long, one season short, its only consistency is its certainty to change. This season Paris has insisted on very short skirts, reaching on an average to no more than eight inches below the knee. It is not surprising that the American woman, the slimmest of whose ankles is proverbial, should have espoused this style with some degree of enthusiasm—but, always a little more dignified than the Parisienne, she has tempered her acceptance with a becoming modesty.

Admitting the influence of Paris, but subjecting it to domestic revision, the approved skirt length this side the Atlantic has been established at about ten inches above the ground—and it marks a decided improvement both in poise and dignity over the French frocks.

Another instance wherein the word of Paris was accorded something less than its wonted reception concerns itself with the widely bruited strictly tailored suit. Not that there has been any hesitancy about accepting the O'Rossen styled costume. Far from it. The trim, severe lines, the short hip-length jackets and above all the splendidly conceived materials of the Paris-designed tailleur place it in the front ranks of the new clothes. But in France the suit is a necessity, an absolute essential. No Parisienne dares complete her wardrobe without

At least one of these mannish costumes, which is not the case on these less impulsive shores. Whether from a fear that the suit would become vulgarized through a too extended vogue, or from a sense of innate conservatism, the fact remains that the response of the American woman to the rigidly tailored vogue has not nearly measured up to expectations. Of course it's a safe acquisition—the severe suit will be decidedly en regle this season and even more so next—but it is not prescribed. And if it doesn't become you, you may neglect it in your new outfit and have no qualms about being demode.

Silhouette and Trimmings.
As to the silhouette and the trimming details of the new Paris dresses, they have been indorsed without qualification. The slim outline is even more acceptable this side of the Atlantic than in Paris, inasmuch as the typical American girl has more youthful proportions.

Yet we dare this prophecy: Along about the middle of the season there will be a reaction toward a more involved silhouette, perhaps bouffant, perhaps flaring to one side, and with it, as a necessary consequence, will come a greater simplicity of trimming.

The certain prevalence of the short skirt for spring has placed an added importance on the new footwear. Shoe styles change with lightning rapidity, and this season a wealth of entirely new ideas is offered.

Lines are sharply drawn between daytime and evening slippers and the same type of shoe is not appropriate for both occasions. For informal wear, with short skirts and youthful lines, short and medium vamps in combination with medium toes are worn, while the medium point is en regle in the evening. The cut-out effect, with one or two straps, is a universal and invariable note at all times.

Among the fashionable leathers for daytime lizard is the most emphasized. Alligator, despite much propaganda, is quite out of the picture. The popular suedes are brown and gray—but decidedly not black, which is both clumsy and demode. For wear with black cloth—and black is widely worn this season—black patent kid, trimmed with white piping, is both smart and effective. When the color scheme of the costume is brown, tan shoes trimmed with brown, gold or white are appropriate. The bronze shoe is back after a prolonged absence and is worn in conjunction with brown-hued frocks.

In the evening fancy suedes are far and away the most important shoe fabric. Blue shades predominate, challenged closely by green and red in the order named. Gold and silver kids, both as a trimming on the suede and as the basic leather of the shoe, are widely noted. The smartest combinations among the satins are black trimmed with silver kid and brown trimmed with gold kid.

Decorated Footwear.
It is most important to bear in mind, in connection with the question of your new evening shoes, that the color of the dress must be closely approximated in the slipper—the smartest and most modish ensemble touch of the season joins evening dress and shoes in an identity of color.

It is evident that the most popular type of shoe for the country club will be the white suede slipper trimmed with lizard.

Just as in the other branches of costume, the most important theme of the new shoes is the trimming thereof. And the distinguishing note of this detail is the size of the ornamentation. For daytime wear small trimmings are employed, while the elaboration of the evening slipper is expressed in large motifs.

Buckles, in varying shapes and sizes, are the most important of the shoe accessories. They are made from numerous materials—some are steel, either plain or studded with rhinestones, some bronze, others enamel and some few are developed in the finest of leathers. The tendency is away from the steels and toward the more striking effects such as brilliants studded with colored stones. In addition to the conventional square, oval and round buckles there are novel wing motifs, butterflies, circlets, crescents and snakes.

The jeweled heel is the dernier cri of the evening mode. The heel itself is more conservative and much more subdued than in the immediately preceding seasons, but this comparative severity is more than compensated for by the garish brilliance of the studded jewels. These stand out on dull backgrounds in vivid sparklings of red, green and blue.

Stockings for afternoon wear feature the beige shades with their interesting versions of the much-wanted peau brute and noisette, the latter a taupe variation. The leading evening colors are gazelle, albino, rose and blonde. The fabric of the stocking is chiffon, almost without exception—and it is the sheerest and most fragile type of chiffon.

Coal Has Bright Flame

Cannel coal burns with a bright, candle-like flame, and it is probable that the name is a corruption of candle-coal. This coal is found in Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana, and some believe that it is a product of an accumulation of animal as well as plant remains. The same kind of coal is found in Scotland, where it is called parrot coal.

A Raveling Story

Mary Anne, just five years old, was watching the new cook make a pie. She watched her roll out the crust, fit it in the pan and then take up the knife to cut off the pieces which extended over the edge of the pan. "Oh, I want to make a little pie," she exclaimed. "Can I have the ravelings of dough you just cut off for it?"

Corn Objects to Too Much Water

Soil Should Be Well Drained With Plenty of Humus or Plant Material.

Corn won't grow well if it has wet feet.

This means, according to a recent bulletin issued by the New York College of Agriculture, that soil needs to be well drained, yet have plenty of moisture. An abundance for humus or rotten plant material likewise, seems an essential for successful corn culture. Corn is likely to do well in plowed-over sod land, especially where clover has been grown. Too stiff clay soils are not advised for corn.

Plant Is Heavy Feeder.

"Corn is a heavy feeder," explains R. M. Adams, author of the bulletin. "On some soils as much as ten or twelve tons of stable manure, together with 300 pounds of a fertilizer rich in phosphoric acid, is used to each acre. It would be interesting for you to fertilize one-half of your plot at this rate and the rest with one-half as much. You can then determine whether the increased yield on the part more heavily fertilized paid for the cost of the extra fertilizer."

"In figuring the cost of the extra fertilizers you should charge only half the value of the manure against your corn, since much fertility is left in the soil for later crops. The commercial fertilizer may be charged at full value, though on many soils, especially clayey ones, much of the plant food remains more than one year in the soil."

Fall Plowing Best.

"Unless your soil tends to wash or run together, it is usually best to plow in the fall. There are several good reasons for this: First, there is more time to spare; second, plowed land, unless very sandy, retains for the use of summer crops more of the water from winter rains and snows; third, organic material decays better if plowed under; this is especially important if sod land is used, as it commonly is for corn; fourth, insects are exposed to the winter weather and many perish; this also is especially important in the case of sod land, which is likely to harbor many injurious insects; fifth, most clay soils are made more loose and mellow by exposure to freezing and thawing."

"After plowing, the amount of further preparation which you will need to make depends upon the kind of soil and the season. You must make your seed bed loose enough so that corn roots can readily penetrate it; yet compact enough to retain moisture, and you must keep it free from weeds."

Professor Adam's new bulletin is entitled, "Corn Growing for Boys and Girls." It is known as JB-S. While it is intended especially for junior project workers, it will be of value and interest to anyone who grows corn.

Maple Trees Go Back

The soft maple is not a long-lived tree. When the trees reach their maximum size they are apt to begin to go backward and borers begin to attack them. The trees naturally grow along streams and for that reason need an abundant supply of water. If trees are on upland, it may be they have suffered from drought during the last few years. It frequently takes several years for large trees to show signs of injury unless they are watched.

Flies Cause Worry

When the cows are freed from flies they can devote all of their energy to production, which is otherwise materially decreased by the excitement and worry caused by the flies. If screening cannot be done, spraying with some cheap but effective fly repellent should precede the milking process. Care should be taken, not to get any of the spray into the milk because of the disagreeable odor and taste it will impart.

Way to Handle Insects

The rotation of crops is an effective way of handling many injurious insects. The growing of the same crop year after year in the same land enables many insects which normally feed on that crop to develop and multiply. On the other hand, a good crop rotation makes it very difficult for an insect to pass through its life stages without being seriously disturbed and its food supply destroyed.

Undersized Cow Gone

The day of the undersized cow of small capacity of barrel and udder is gone. We want large, rugged, well-developed cows of quality, with the ability to produce large quantities of milk. We may get them by selection from within our state, by growing out the heifers from our good pure bred sires, and by purchasing them from some large dairy center without the state.

High Class Country Butter

A poor butter maker can make better butter from good cream than a good butter maker can make from poor cream. A manufactured product is only as good as the raw material from which it is made. This being true, the production of good, clean cream, free from contamination and foreign flavors, is the first and most important step in the manufacture of high-class country butter.

HOUSECLEANING, MEN, AND HAIR

By THELMA A. MATTHEWS

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT WAS the season of budding blossoms and—housecleaning. Mrs. Roland, with all the energy of her tidy little soul, was "chasing dirt."

Her happiness was almost too complete to be true, she thought; and she paused in the act of bringing her husband's winter overcoat for its spring airing to muse upon the merits of its owner.

"Bob is just perfect," she said softly, with a tender smile. "He's never cross, never inconsiderate, and never even looks at another woman! Poor Mrs. Ashburton must have been heart-broken when she discovered that her husband had been making love to his secretary for months."

Mrs. Roland unconsciously made a very pretty picture as she stood in the sunshine musing upon husbands in general and one husband in particular. She suddenly realized, however, that dreaming there would not finish the housecleaning, so she roused herself to complete the task of airing her husband's overcoat.

She patted it and gazed at it lovingly. She could remember the first day he had worn it and how splendid he had looked. Yes, and there was the buttonhole in which she had placed a late wild rose, in token of her love for him.

And then she saw something that made her rub her eyes in doubt; could it be?—but, yes, it was! There on her Bob's coat collar was a long, curling, golden hair!

Her throat made a funny, pathetic little sound as she gingerly picked up the fiendish thing; it coiled about her finger like a tiny snake preparing to spring; it acted alive!

Good Lord, where did he get this thing? Staggering suspicions entered her mind. Her heart whispered that she must be reasonable, but she was a woman and—there was that thing in her finger. She pulled at it fiercely, cast it off and stamped angrily upon the place where she supposed it to have fallen.

With one bound Mrs. Roland was in the house. She flew to her room, flung herself face downward upon her bed, and sobbed her poor, irrational little heart out. Finally reason suggested that she think with her mind instead of her heart, and this time she heeded the suggestion.

That Bob loved another woman was evident; for what, otherwise, could a curly golden hair upon his coat signify? She stole a look in the mirror at her own shiny black head and said viciously: "Oh, I always knew that he preferred blondes!"

But who was the woman? She tried to remember when Bob had last worn the coat, but her brain, weary with the mental struggle, refused to aid her. She was sure of only two things in the world—that she was very, very unhappy, and that Bob would soon be home to lunch.

She dreaded facing him with this new knowledge in her heart, but with a woman's eye for the dramatic possibilities of the situation, she primed herself for battle.

Promptly on the stroke of twelve her husband entered the kitchen and greedily looked about, man-fashion, for signs of luncheon. There were none. Bob gave a surprised whistle and started on a tour of inspection. He called, but no cheerful little wife answered. "He rushed through the house, at last entered their bedroom, and found his wife, looking charming but very pale, sitting bolt upright on the edge of the bed."

She gave him a haughty, disdainful glance, and maintained her position in spite of his efforts to pull her to him in their usual embrace. Finally, he sensed that something was acutely wrong. (Being a man, it took him all this time to find it out!)

"What is it, darling? Why don't you speak to me? What have I done?" "Done!" exclaimed his wife in a suppressed voice. "You know what you've done better than I."

Just then her love of the dramatic and her resolve to be cold, firm and unyielding slipped away like so many snowflakes. Her slight form heaved with anguished sobs.

"Bob, if you'll tell me the truth, I'll forgive you. What was that hair doing on your coat?" She gazed searchingly into his eyes.

Bob chuckled. "Dearest, other women are out of my line, and, anyway, I never did like blondes; but I've been thinking hard, and I guess I can explain that hair away. Here goes: The last time I wore that coat I was down at the office, finishing up for the day. The office boy carelessly spilled some cigar ashes on me, and, knowing that my stenographer had a whisk broom, I asked to borrow it. Now that I think of it, I believe I do remember that it was pretty well covered with hair, but, being innocent of crime, I didn't think of its getting on my coat when I brushed myself."

"Then you do love me, don't you, dear? And you're not horrid like other men, are you?" "Oh, I guess I'm as far from being perfect as the rest of the brutes, but never fear about my loving you. That's one of the things that I don't do nothing else but, Barbara mine."

Barbara sighed happily. "Say, sweetness" (from Bob), "with do we eat?"

It Has Its Putty Value

A justice of the peace in Pittsburgh has ruled that chewing gum is a drug, and that settles another vexed question. It can't qualify as food, drink, cosmetics or green groceries, and this judicial wisdom comes just in time to keep us from classifying it as a game of skill.—Tacoma Ledger.

Find Antique Bridge

As the result of excavations at Trent Park, England, the residence of Sir Philip Sassoon, a drawbridge of great antiquity has been discovered. Roman daggers and sandals and some quaint horseshoes also have been unearthed. Dick Turpin used to hide in the moat in this park.

Lightning Lore

More men than women are struck by lightning. The cause is not in any physical difference between the sexes; it is that men, by their nature and habits, are more frequently exposed to the danger. Incidentally, men are also more liable to lightning strikes!

Named by Indians

Kentucky received its name from the Indians. The word "Kentucky" means "the dark and bloody ground," and was applied to the present state of Kentucky because that region had been the scene of savage warfare.

Cause for Thanks

"I met a real optimist the other day," said the physician, "a fellow to whom I certainly doff my hat. He had lost a leg in a railroad accident, and when they picked him up the first thing he said: 'Thank God it was the with the rheumatism!'"—Harp magazine.

Owls Much Help to All Farmers

Birds Are Useful in Destroying Moths, Caterpillars and Other Insects.

Is it not strange that we do not see more owls, since they are such useful birds on the farm? I shall never forget the first time I saw an owl; it was exactly like a bundle of soft, grayish-white feathers, says a writer in the Montreal Family Herald and Star. As it flew from the gable of the farmhouse to a neighboring elm tree I could see nothing but feathers, no beak or claws or head. It alighted on the elm branch and kept perfectly still, so still that presently a little field mouse passed that way and never knew the owl was there, watching, till it found itself whirled aloft. The owl swooped down so quickly and picked up the mouse so swiftly that probably the poor little mite hardly knew anything at all about what was happening.

Habits of Owls.

It is always difficult to find out anything about the habits of owls; they come out only at dusk, when it is impossible to watch them very closely, and their eggs are generally laid in places that are not easy to reach. It happens sometimes that they come for food near our houses, and then we may catch sight of them and their actions. They are very fond of sparrows, and when the young ones are getting ready to leave the nest the owls will often come and steal them. This sounds hard for the parent birds, but it is a good thing for the farmer, for the sparrows are grain-eating birds, and often do a great amount of harm.

Owls help the farmer, too, in getting rid of countless numbers of mice, for they are as fond of mice as of birds. Therefore, if an owl is noticed haunting a house, especially in the country, you may be quite sure he is after either sparrows or mice.

Fond of Rats and Mice.

Owls are sometimes blamed for eating young pigeons, but it is more usually rats that get into the pigeon cote. If the owls are seen near the cote it is most probable that they have seen the rat go in and are waiting for it to come out. Any owl would much prefer a fine rat for his supper to a young pigeon, and as long as there are rats the owls will hunt them and will generally leave the pigeons alone.

Young owls are very fond of moths, and in this way the whole owl family is a great help to the farmer and gardener. We do our best to trap the caterpillars that destroy our flowers and vegetables, but we cannot catch the moths that lay the eggs that turn into these caterpillars. You can understand how useful the owls are in this way when you remember that an ordinary cabbage or yellow-underwing moth will lay about a score of eggs at a time, and that all the caterpillars that hatch out will grow to about an inch long with very big appetites. Besides the moths, owls will eat any other large insect they see on the wing, especially beetles.

The commonest owl is perhaps that known as the Brown or Tawny owl, and the rarest the Little owl, a pretty little white and brown bird nine inches long, that comes out in the daytime more often than the other and larger species.

To Destroy Dock

A sure way to free meadows of dock, if not too thick, is to take a sharp tilling spade, and when ground is soft, go over the meadow, thrust the spade under the roots, give a little pry, and the whole plant can be easily pulled up roots and all. This method injures the grass very little. If a farm is badly infested with dock, it may be necessary to keep up a warfare for several years, but the success will be worth all it costs.

To Prevent Milk Fever

To prevent milk fever the calf should be allowed to nurse for a few days. If that is not done then the udder should not be milked out clean at first, but enough milk should be removed now and then to prevent garget. Milk fever will also be less likely to occur if the secretion of milk is dried off for at least six weeks before calving, exercise is enforced daily, the rich feed greatly lessened, and the bowels kept active.

Curculio Injures Peach

The curculio, a beetle-like insect, punctures the skin of the peach early in its development, and the result is to be seen in malformed fruits and gummy exudations. Spraying with three pounds of arsenate of lead to 100 gallons of water when the shucks are falling is the standard recommendation.

Avoid Too Early Pasturing

Much injury may be done the permanent pasture by too early grazing. It is always a safe plan to let the grass get a good start and the soil become firm before turning the stock on the pasture. Early spring injury will have its effect on the pasture throughout the season.

Test All Seed Corn

Good seed corn is just as essential as any other farm seed, and by the best selection, careful testing and good breeding a better grade of corn can soon be produced, which not only means an increase in yield, but more profit in money to the farmer.

BURGLARS

Several Homes Entered and Clothing and Jewelry Stolen.

The homes of Earl Hoffman, on South Court street; William Knode, on West Huston street; J. M. Woods, on Edison avenue; Bryan Pierce, on West Corwin and Mrs. Sarah Hampp on the corner of Washington and Ohio streets, were entered by burglars at an early hour this morning and articles of value and some money taken.

At the Hoffman home $23 in money, a fifteen jeweled Elgin watch a gray checkered sack coat with fine red and white stripes and red dots interwoven in the cloth were taken. At the home of William Knode, a new white sweater and new pair of shoes owned by Mr. Knode's grandson, Earl Buttermann were missing. At the home of J. M. Woods a greenish gray colored overcoat, a blue serge pair of trousers, and a light gray soft hat with black band were taken. Bryan Pierce lost 75 cents in money and a package of cigarets. His trousers were taken outside the door of the home were rifled and left at the door.

The home of Mrs. Sarah Hampp was entered and the burglars went thru the cellar and pantry but did not take anything.

Mrs. Theodore Hatz, who lives on Elm avenue, saw the hand of the burglar as he was trying to enter one of the homes and she says it was a black hand.

The first report made to the police department was by Mr. Hoffman and this was done when he had arisen and could not find his clothing. This was at three o'clock this morning. The last report was at 5:15 o'clock. In all the cases the houses were entered by the burglar cutting the screen and entering. At the Hoffman home the burglar was heard rumaging around but Mrs. Hoffman thought that it was her husband.

The police department and Sheriff Young will search the negro camps north of this city to see if the stolen articles can be located.

HE WILL MANAGE DAVIS CAMPAIGN

Shaver the New Chairman of Democratic Committee.

NATIVE OF WEST VIRGINIA

Advisory Committee to Conduct the Campaign Under the Personal Direction of Shaver, the Committee to Be Supplemented by District Managers in the North, South, East and West--Other Plans.

New York, July 19.—Formal announcement of the appointment of Clem Shaver of West Virginia as chairman of the Democratic national committee, and manager of the presidential campaign of John W. Davis, was made at Davis headquarters here. At the same time, it was announced that Davis will receive official notification of his nomination and deliver his acceptance speech at Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 11. The speech, like that of President Coolidge, will be delivered at 8 p. m., in order to take advantage of radio broadcasting facilities which will give him a nationwide audience at that hour.

Shaver is a native of West Virginia and is 57 years old. Since his service as chairman of the Democratic state committee of West Virginia from 1912 to 1920, his political activities have been devoted to the furtherance of the Davis candidacy. These activities, down to the time of the nomination, are declared to have been without Davis' sanction. It was to Shaver that the Democratic presidential nominee went to protest several months ago. Davis declared at that time he was not a candidate for the presidential nomination.

It was learned that the selection of Shaver had been determined upon some days ago, but the official announcement was withheld until Davis could complete a series of conferences with party leaders. The last of these was held at the home of Frank L. Polk, those present including Thomas Taggart of Indiana, George E. Brennan of Illinois and Norman H. Mack of New York.

It was announced by Mr. Shaver that plans for the campaign still were in the making and nothing could be said at this time regarding the personnel of the organization which is to be set up and which is to cover the country. From other authentic sources it was learned, however, that there will be organized an advisory committee or "board of strategy" to conduct the campaign under the personal direction of Shaver. The new chairman will have around him all of the present former chairmen of the national committee, including Cordell Hull of Tennessee, Vance McCormick of Pennsylvania, George White of Ohio and Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut. This committee will be supplemented by district managers in the east, west, north and south, and serving under these men will be subdistrict committees.

YANKEES TRIUMPH

Paris, July 19.—American tennis stars and boxers carried everything before them in Olympic contests.

Johnny Weissmuller, Kealoha and the American women's 400-meter relay team scored triumphs in the swimming contests, all breaking records.

Helen Wills, Vincent Richards and the American mixed doubles and women's double teams won victories on the Olympic courts.

Yankee boxers, Fields, Labarra, Fee, Sales and Tripoli, all won their bouts at the Velodrome and advanced towards the finals. Fields, the American featherweight, beat Abarca, Chile, on points.

In the finals of the 100-meter back stroke, Kealoha of the United States broke the Olympic record in winning the event from Wyatt of Uniontown, Pa., with Bartha of Hungary third, and Blitz of Belgium fourth. Kealoha's time was 1:13 1-5.

Phone Rate Boost Granted.

Columbus, July 19.—The public utilities commission granted the Cincinnati and Suburban Bell Telephone company the general rate increase asked for service in Cincinnati in new tariffs filed in August, 1920. At the same time the commission disapproved of the telephone company's schedule of toll charges on calls from metropolitan Cincinnati to outlying suburbs, although it let toll charges on calls from the suburbs into Cincinnati stand.

RAPS OLD PARTIES

For Omitting Bone Dry Plank in Their Platform.

Winona Lake, Ind., July 19.—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, made a bitter attack on the two major political parties for failure to include a "bone dry" plank in their platforms, in a speech at the conference of the World League Against Alcoholism here. Wheeler warned his leaders against the "forces of corruption seeking to bring liquor back" and urged the delegates to carry on an unceasing fight for a "bone dry" country.

PROBE STARTED BY PROSECUTOR

Activities of Certain State Officials to Be Aired.

GRAND JURY ACTION SOUGHT

Attorney General Crabbe Suggests Investigation of Endowment Company, Neil House Company and a Dollings Subsidiary—Losses of Former Concern May Exceed $200,000, Receivers Say.

Columbus, July 19.—Receivers indicated that the losses of the Ohio Industrial Endowment company and the Commercial Mortgage company, the two concerns which Louis W. Josephson, attorney, charged with embezzlement, managed, may amount to approximately $200,000.

C. C. Pavey, receiver for the mortgage company, reported that a preliminary examination of the books had shown that about $100,000 in notes was missing. Further examination of the records may reveal additional losses, he said.

Josephson is charged with embezzling $92,476 from the endowment company. Further losses are being revealed, it was said at the company's offices, which may reach $150,000.

A broad investigation of the activities of certain officials in the "blue sky" department in connection with the certification of stock in numerous companies which have failed in Ohio during the last year and a half was started by Prosecuting Attorney John R. King.

In a letter to the prosecutor, Attorney General Crabbe suggests that the probe of the endowment company include the Neil House company, now in the hands of Receiver Edward Turner, and the North Carolina Farms company, a Dollings subsidiary. Receivers of the farms company have reported, Crabbe says, that the concern will not realize more than $200,000 to pay holders of $8,000,000 worth of stock.

"It is unthinkable," Crabbe's letter to the prosecutor declares, "that men should continually rob the people as they have if the departments which have access to their records are performing their duties. As all questionable stock sold throughout Ohio is either certified or exempted from certification in Columbus, it is of vital importance to the entire state that all questionable practices be broken up. I, therefore, suggest the grand jury as the medium through which the facts may be brought to light."

The securities department was requested four months ago to make an investigation of the condition of the Ohio Industrial Endowment company, the attorney general charged. Instead, he declares, they delayed investigation because Josephson had promised to sell certain of his properties, worth about $50,000, to make up some of his alleged losses.

FLOUR PRICES ASCEND

Gain of $1.20 Per Barrel Noted at Chicago Since June 9.

Chicago, July 19.—With the advance of wheat prices of wheat flour have taken an ascent. Prices were lifted 20 cents a barrel to $8 for the best known brands of Minneapolis patents, making a gain of $1.20 per barrel since June 9, and rye flour is up 75 cents to $1 for the same period.

The poor prospect for the corn crop, with the promise of a yield of 2,515,000,000 bushels on July 1, the smallest with two exceptions in 20 years, is considered responsible for the high prices prevailing for the grain. Hogs have also shared in the upward movement and touched $8.10, the highest price since last October, and nearly $1 increase lately.

All of the speculative grain markets are regarded by grain men as somewhat strained and extremely rapid price changes are expected.

Debs Urges Support of La Follette.

Chicago, July 19.—Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, from his sick bed in a sanitarium here, issued a call for the forces of Socialism to swing behind the movement to elect Senator La Follette of Wisconsin president. The progressive convention in Cleveland was in reality the American labor party "in embryo," Debs said. He ridiculed the charge that the Socialist party was "wrecked" by its decision to join with La Follette forces.

Mother and Child Perish.

Toledo, July 19.—Mrs. Ira Pollard, 31, and her daughter, Ruth, 3, perished when they were trapped in their burning home at Prairie Depot, Wood county. Mrs. Rosa Jackson was seriously burned.

JOHN J. KINDRED

New York Congressman Operating Simian Farm in Florida.

Kindred is operating a simian farm for the study of transplantation of glands as a means of bringing about rejuvenation.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Prison School Enrollment.

Columbus, July 19.—Ohio penitentiary's intra-wall correspondence school has granted its third diploma. Three hundred additional students are pursuing courses of study and others are joining the ranks. The school, originated by Chaplain T. O. Reed for the instruction of inmates at the institution, is maintained by funds subscribed by individuals and organizations interested in the education of those confined in penal institutions. The courses are obtained through the International Correspondence school and are the same as studied by those outside the walls, Chaplain Reed explained.

To Probe Yeoman's Death.

Mt. Gilead, O., July 19.—It was announced that an inquiry into the death of Lewis Yeoman of Cardington, O., will be started July 26 by the Morrow county grand jury. Meanwhile, the widow, Mrs. Annora Yeoman, who is alleged to have confessed to administering poison tablets to her husband, is being held in county jail as a material witness. No charge of murder has yet been filed against her.

Three Children Perish.

Ironton, O., July 19.—Three girls were burned to death when fire of undetermined origin destroyed their home at Coal Grove, near here. The dead are: Amy Barber, 12, Lindsay, 10, and Carmela, 8. Albert Barber, the father, first discovered the blaze, and succeeded in carrying his wife out of the house. Flames spread so rapidly he was unable to save his children.

Ordinance Hits Jitneys.

Youngstown, O., July 19.—City council passed as an emergency measure the traffic ordinance which means the death of the jitney business in Youngstown. The measure so enlarges the congested district, so-called, where parking is prohibited, that the jitneys are forced so far from the center of the city that it will be impossible for them to operate.

Hands Blown Off.

Bellaire, O., July 19.—William Scheffler, 19, had both of his hands blown off in an explosion of powder in the Electric Supply company here. When he regained consciousness and found that both of his hands had been taken off, he pleaded with doctors to let him die.

Two Children Killed.

Cleveland, July 19.—Two children were killed by a motor truck and three were seriously injured in traffic accidents here. The dead are: Stella Kolnitsky, 8, and Paul Tropf, 7. The deaths bring the total since Jan. 1 to 75, 28 of which were children.

Burns Cause Tetanus.

Lancaster, O., July 19.—Lockjaw, developing from a burn received on the left hand July 4, caused the death of Chester Ashton, 13, only son of Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Ashton of Basil.

Frazier For La Follette.

Washington, July 19.—Senator L. J. Frazier, three times Republican governor of North Dakota, announced that he "will actively support" the candidacy of Senator Robert M. La Follette in the coming presidential campaign. Frazier declared he would bolt President Coolidge because the chief magistrate did not represent his brand of Republicanism.

Coolidge to Give His Ideas of Acceptance Address.

CAMPAIGN PLANS DISCUSSED

General Headquarters to Be Maintained at Chicago Throughout the Campaign—President Said to Regard Republican Prospects as Hopeful—Publicity Director to Maintain Office in Washington.

Washington, July 19.—Republican leaders here stated that general headquarters would be maintained in Chicago throughout the campaign.

It was announced further that George Barr Baker, the director of publicity, would maintain his offices in Washington and that Chairman Butler of the Republican national committee would spend considerable time here in consultation with President Coolidge.

A white house statement declared that the president regarded the Republican situation as hopeful. Although reports of the political situation in about a dozen states have been laid before Mr. Coolidge this week, all predicting large majorities for the Republican national ticket on the basis of present indications, Mr. Coolidge is inclined to discount the predictions somewhat, especially at this stage of preliminaries to the campaign, and is said to believe no campaign can be listed finally as won or lost three and a half months before election.

President Coolidge has not yet started drafting the address he will deliver at the notification ceremonies here Aug. 14. He gave visitors the impression that in setting forth his appeal for support at the polls he would present a review of accomplishments of Republican administration since 1921, making this the primary basis of the request for support. He will talk over his ideas of the acceptance speech next week with Chairman Butler. Although John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential nominee, will deliver his keynote acceptance address prior to the date set for the Republican presidential candidate's notification, Mr. Coolidge does not propose to make his acceptance address a reply to the speech made by Mr. Davis.

In a statement made in New York Mr. Butler expressed the opinion that the oil scandals will play only an insignificant part in the campaign. He said the chief issue would be Coolidge and Dawes. The La Follette candidacy, the Republican chairman added, he considered overrated.

SAYS STATE WORSTED IN BRICK PLANT DEAL

Republican State Headquarters Issues Statement.

Columbus, July 19.—Republican state headquarters issued a statement charging that the state welfare department recently had purchased a brick plant at Roseville, Muskingum county, paying almost double the price at which it was offered for sale a year ago.

The statement says that a year ago the plant was offered for sale at $18,000 by the Roseville Paving Brick and Terra Cotta company. No buyer for it was found, the statement continued, until about a month ago, when it was sold to the Tri-County Brick company, which July 9 transferred it to the state. The Tri-County Brick company, it was charged in the Republican statement, has among its incorporators and officers a number of personal and political friends of Welfare Director Harper.

Director Harper said he did not know whether purchase of the plant had been consummated, but admitted negotiations for it at the price named, $35,000, had been under way for some time. He said they had been carried forward by James E. Clark, manager of the manufacturing and sales division of the welfare department. Clark asserted that the deal was not closed.

Two armed bandits overpowered a bookkeeper as he unlocked the door of the Fort street branch of a Detroit bank, looked him in a wash room, took $30,000 in currency and escaped in an automobile.

ACCUSE POLITICIANS

Gangsters Said to Have Confessed to Gas Attack on Legislature.

Providence, R. I., July 19.—Gangsters of New York and Boston are alleged by a local newspaper to have confessed they were hired by Republicans to break the recent filibuster in the state legislature. According to the newspaper, the gangsters are the men who introduced bundles of gauze and paper treated with powerful chemicals into the legislative hall during the filibuster, causing several men to be overcome. The men said they were hired by John Toomey of Providence and paid by William C. Pelky, chairman of the Republican state central committee, according to the newspaper. The gas-saturated papers were discovered in the senate chamber after several senators had become so ill they had to be treated in a hospital. The senate had been deadlocked since it convened the first of the year. Bitter arguments between the Republicans and the Democrats caused the deadlock, and so evenly divided was the strength that none of the state bills could be passed.

FORCED TO DESCEND

British Around-the-World Flier Found Safe on Island.

Tokio, July 19.—Forced to descend, Major A. Stuart MacLaren, missing British world flyer, was found safe on Urup Island, in the Kuriles group, north of Japan. The airman had covered about half the distance from Hokkaido to Paramushiro Island when forced down. He had just begun the most perilous part of his round-the-world flight—the crossing of the Pacific in short jumps from one blizzard-whipped, frozen island to the next. Major MacLaren had been missing nearly 48 hours.

Advices from the Isakaze indicated that comparatively minor difficulties forced MacLaren to descend and that he will be able to proceed as soon as the weather becomes favorable and his plane is repaired again.

POMERENE'S CHARGE

Counsel For Accused Oil Magnates Seek to Delay Trials.

Washington, July 19.—Pleas of abatement filed by Sinclair and the Doheyns, oil magnates, were merely for the purpose of delaying their trial, according to Atlee Pomerene, special counsel. "They certainly are illegal, because the defendants had not even been arraigned at the time they were filed," Pomerene stated.

Pomerene and O. J. Roberts, his colleague, have filed motions to dismiss all the pleas on this ground. This motion may be heard next week. "The hearing on the Teapot Dome lease has been set for Oct. 7, at Cheyenne, but so far we have been unable to get a hearing assigned for the Doheyn suit," Pomerene stated.

Except for the hearing next week on the motion to have the pleas in abatement to the criminal indictments thrown out, it appears unlikely that there will be any further activity in the oil cases before October.

MANY LIVES SAVED BY U. S. LIBERALITY

Established Public Health Measures in Serbia.

New York.—"American methods of fighting disease and promoting public health through sanitary measures and public education are rapidly being adopted throughout Serbia as a result of the reconstruction work done there since the war by the Serbian Child Welfare Association of America," said William J. Doherty, executive secretary of the association.

"The health work done by the association in Serbia was one of the most important, if not the most important phase of activities which the generosity of the American people made possible. The need of Serbia, like other European allies, for aid, was almost as urgent immediately following the war as during the course of the conflict itself. Specters of disease, epidemics, exposure and starvation stalked through the devastated regions of Serbia.

Nurses' School Established.
"Had America, with its resources of money and trained personnel, failed to respond to Serbia's appeal the post-war losses of life in that country would at least have equaled those of the period of conflict.

"Among the outstanding results of the health work instituted by the Serbian Child Welfare Association of America were the establishment of the first training school for nurses in Serbia; the organization of a health workers' school for short intensive training of nurses and other health workers, the publication of a textbook on hygiene, home and community sanitation, for which King Alexander himself wrote an introduction and assisted in placing in public schools throughout Serbia, and the formation of domestic science schools, which offered Serbian young women short courses in house-keeping, cooking, sewing, home sanitation and personal hygiene.

Three Gifts Made.
"Soon after beginning work in Serbia the association enlisted the interest of the Serbian ministry of health, the medical association and various Serbian public health and welfare groups in establishing the training school. An initial gift of 350,000 dinars (a dinar normally is equal to 19.3 cents) was made for the purpose by the association. Shortly afterward the Serbian Red Cross contributed 500,000 dinars and the association raised its gift to meet this sum.

"Important as was the work of the association in saving the lives and providing for 25,000 orphans and in helping to rebuild more than 300 schoolhouses in Serbia, the health work which the organization did will, in the opinion of American experts, make an even more lasting impress on the future of this little Balkan country, which suffered worse, in proportion to its size and population, than any other country during the war."

Claims Jap Has Found Food to Add to Stature

Tokyo.—Victor Heiser, director of the Far East Rockefeller foundation, said that Doctor Sakie of the Japanese Institute of Nutrition is about to startle the medical world with a discovery of a fish powder to increase human stature.

"He has proved it in animals, and is now demonstrating it in humans," Mr. Heiser said. "I am convinced it is genuine and practical."

The American, who is consulting the authorities regarding establishing a research hospital financed by the foundation, says the anti-American agitation does not affect the plan.

"National questions do not concern us," Mr. Heiser declared. "We are now working in 37 countries, showing that we have no preference for races or nations."

The main work of the foundation in Japan will be to demonstrate that the annual death rate is unnecessary, due solely to the unbalanced diet and the lack of the use of preventatives.

Eleven Years in Mail

Springfield, Mass.—A Christmas greeting card mailed on December 23, 1912, in the neighboring village of Feeding Hills, was received a few days ago by Miss Olive H. Causey, eleven and a half years after it was mailed and more than six years after the death of the sender, George Hudson. Miss Causey has announced. Where the card has spent the interval postal officials do not know.

To Take Baby and Goat on Voyage

Anacortes, Wash.—A married couple with their baby and a cat and a goat will soon be afloat and northward bound from here to Skagway, Alaska. The goat will supply milk for the baby, who is going along with Mr. and Mrs. Linden B. Pentz, its parents, on the 1,000-mile trip in a small catboat.

According to their plans, they will arrive in the North just about time for the babe to cut his teeth on a piece of grizzly bear hide or mountain goat steak. Each night the tiny motor boat will be beached and the goat permitted to forage while the family enjoys sleep in a tent.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

HAPPINESS

UNTIL he was forty a neighbor of mine lived a happy, active, useful life. He had a good job, at which he earned a salary sufficient to support his family comfortably. He was interested in community affairs, he was a useful citizen, he was enthusiastic over paying for the pretty house he had built, and his future seemed bright and satisfying.

Then, unfortunately, his aunt died and left him $50,000. He gave up his job immediately, quit work and set out to enjoy himself. The income from his legacy was scarcely as much as his salary had previously been, and as his leisure increased his desires multiplied quite disproportionately. He became discontented, nomadic, a lazy, useless citizen, who is happy nowhere. He spends his winters in Florida and his summers camping out in the woods or drifting up and down the river in a motorboat. He is bringing up his two boys to be unhappy loafers like himself. But he is a pathetic figure. He has not learned the lesson that there is no real happiness without work. The most unhappy, discontented people I have ever known are those who have money enough to live on without following any regular daily occupation, and who put in their time looking for pleasure. The woman who has no occupation but bridge whist is a miserable creature, and the man who is trying to pay his obligations to the world by playing golf or billiards is an unhappy, discontented grouch. The most wretched men in the world are those who give up work before they are compelled to do so.

Sometimes when the days are hot and long and the tasks are hard and life seems too full of duties for us to fulfill them all, we might be helped if we stopped long enough to realize that real happiness is always synonymous with work. It is the hard job, the difficult and often the disagreeable task that brings us joy in the accomplishment.

The greatest blessing that God ever bestowed upon fallen man was the privilege of earning his bread by the sweat of his brow. It was the best possible substitute for paradise.

Four men were wounded when bullets from the coast guard cutter Arcata, seeking rum smugglers, pierced the gasoline tank of their motorboat in Mutiny bay, north of Seattle, Wash.

Elephant Fierce Fighter

The list of hunters who have conquered lions at desperately close quarters, who have been actually mauled by them and have yet survived, is long. Far fewer in the annals of African exploration and hunting are those who have come into direct personal contact with an angry elephant in his native wilds and have lived to tell the tale.

Cloth From Dog's Hair

The beautiful white hair of the Samoyed dog has been woven into cloth and the commercial possibilities of the finished product have been successfully demonstrated by the Royal Society of Arts in London. The hair used was from the combings, the undercoat that falls naturally twice a year.

Boston's Proud Position

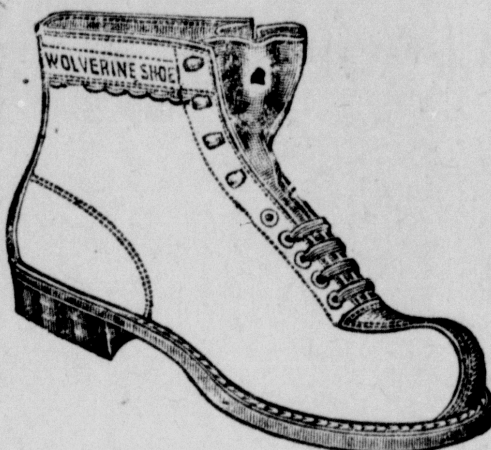

On being offered a Boston joke the editor of a humorous weekly proceeded to take the alleged humorist to task in no uncertain manner. "I don't see any point to these whams about the highbrow proclivities of Boston," declared the editor. "They're out of date, to say the least. Boston has won her share of pennants and was once the home of John L. Sullivan."

Wild Boar Incased in Ice

An avalanche sweeping across the Bourg d'Oslans road near Rochetalle, France, recently dropped off a huge block of ice which was found to contain the body of a wild boar. The animal had been swept up as the avalanche started on its wild career and was frozen within it.

South African Witch Doctor Cannot Lose

When a South African native becomes ill the last thing that occurs to him is that natural causes have anything to do with his malady. "N'de takatiwe," he cries out in great mental anguish. "N'de takatiwe—I have been bewitched." Thereupon he does one of two things. He either seeks some quiet place where he may lie down and give up the ghost, or else he carries his troubles to a witch doctor and beseeches him to drive out the evil spirits that he believes the magic of some spiteful enemy to have placed in occupation of his body. writes G. K. Chesterton in the Continental edition of the London Mail.

Upon payment of a suitable fee the witch doctor takes up his client's case in a manner vaguely resembling a barrister accepting a brief. While the barrister takes down his law books, searches for precedents and tunes up his eloquence, the witch doctor does even stranger things, such as the throwing about of bones, the lighting of a magic fire and the murmuring of incantations that are older than the hills and very nearly as old as some of our legal precepts.

Should the patient get better he regards it as a triumph for his consulting wizard, and, overwhelmed that individual with presents, he goes his merry way. On the other hand, should he get worse and die, it becomes obvious to all that the magic of the unspeakable enemy has gained the victory and the only thing his friends can do is to see that the poor wretch gets an adequate burial.

After weathering the sunshine and storms of perhaps two centuries, a two-story house, built of mud from foundation to roof, has been discovered by a Philadelphia building inspector and condemned.

Close examination of the unique structure, which stands at 322 Buttonwood street, revealed that builders of 200 years ago used the same methods of pouring mud into wooden molds as is used today in the construction of modern concrete buildings.

To the generations of men, women and children that have passed it, the house has stood as a landmark, but not one of noteworthy history. A week ago it was to the passing citizenry only a house on a street, "that's been there for many years."

Queen Elizabeth's Tree

Over 300 years ago Queen Elizabeth planted a tree at Hingham, England. Later on immigrants established the new town of Hingham in Massachusetts. The tree grew and flourished and eventually died and the town fathers of old Hingham had the tree sawed up and three chairs were made from the lumber. One of the three has been presented to the Old First church of Hingham, Mass., the oldest place of public worship in the American colonies. The church, built in 1681, still stands on its original site. The chairs are the most recent of several remembrances sent to new Hingham from old Hingham, which from 1633 to 1639 furnished many of the earliest settlers of the Massachusetts town. In 1911 Ambassador James Bryce presented the town a stone from the village green of the old town.

Epitaph Premature

His own epitaph was read by R. Soglietti when he visited a battle ground and military cemetery at Rambovillers, in the Vosges. Soglietti discovered a tombstone, surmounted by a white cross, together with that of his old regiment. Soglietti had fallen on that very battlefield in 1914, severely wounded, but had eventually recovered. He is now in receipt of a pension as being permanently disabled. He has reported the matter to the military authorities, and has requested to be allowed to live a little longer.

HERRICK REFRIGERATORS

The Big Difference In Refrigerators

The main object of any refrigerator, of course, is the preservation of foods. The refrigerator that will keep foods in perfect condition longest is naturally the refrigerator you want—provided it doesn't increase your ice bills.

The Herrick answers those requirements with facts—not claims. And it does even more. It actually decreases your ice bills while giving you more effective food preservation.

And why? Simply because the Herrick is far more than an ice box—far more than a cold storage place. It is built on the scientifically demonstrated principle that more than merely cold air is necessary to keep foods in good condition for any great length of time.

Perhaps the biggest essentials to scientifically correct refrigeration are—

- No. 1. Circulation of cold dry air.
- No. 2. Effective Insulation.
- No. 3. Air-tight construction.

That the Herrick has these necessary essentials is a demonstrated fact.

Many proofs of the truth are visible even to the least informed purchaser. Others are hidden within the walls of the refrigerator, but nevertheless there, performing their functions so important to good health and economy.

WOMEN VOTERS

Will They Utilize the Ballot to the Same
Extent as Men?

Will women ever "participate in all phases of political life on a basis of actual as well as nominal equality with men?" Assistant Professors Stuart A. Rice and Malcolm M. Willey of Dartmouth college discuss various aspects of that question in the July number of Current History. They have handled a highly controversial subject in a scholarly way. Their preliminary conclusions are a highly interesting contribution to a discussion which will be with us as long as universal suffrage prevails. They do not answer the question, contending themselves with stating that "there is nothing in the first years of the universal suffrage experiment to force the conclusion that this cannot come to pass."

First of all, the evidence seems to show that "women have not utilized the ballot to the same extent as men," possibly on account of their minor influence within the parties, their lack of experience and the novelty of the great experiment. General estimates of their inactivity are borne out by figures from Illinois, the one state where the votes of men and women are segregated. In the presidential election of 1920, 74.1 per cent of the eligible men voted and but 46.5 of the qualified women. Making proper allowance for variable factors, Professors Rice and Willey find that in 21 northern and western states between 34.7 and 46.5 of the women voters went to the polls, a proportion "markedly less than the corresponding figures for the men. The tradition that woman's place is anywhere but in the voting booth appears to persist." When they do vote, the women seem to look at problems not exactly as men do. They apparently favor prohibition more than their brothers do. In Chicago, they have been bolder, more intelligent and less partisan. They seem to be less eager than men for radical changes and "lean to the support of 'moral' causes." Nevertheless, in Oregon women "were opposed to the eight-hour day for women, to a single tax, to proportional representation, to the abolition of the state senate, to extending certain functions of government and perhaps to spending public money."

On collateral subjects, party influence and office holding, there is plenty of direct evidence of their present position, whatever may be the inference to be drawn. They hold few posts of responsibility and high salary. Men run the national committees and conventions. Women have received senatorial nominations only when the chances of success were negligible. The Woman Citizen records 84 woman legislators elected in 30 states in 1922, as against 10,000 men. The two woman representatives in Washington were elected to fill the unexpired terms of a father and a husband. Of 788 county offices in New Jersey, women occupy 19. In North Dakota 422 county offices are men and two women. Forty of the 272 county officers in Wyoming are women. In short, "where salary and power are concerned, a man fills the office chair."—Boston Herald.

FORD CARS SOLD

General Prosperity Indicated in Reports
Thruout Country.

Sales reports from the 34 American branches of the Ford Motor company show that over a million Ford cars and trucks were sold at retail during the first six months of 1924. The actual figure is 1,036,978, which exceeds the total retail sales for the same period in 1923 by 133,095, an average gain of 22,182 sales per month.

A comparison between Ford sales in 1924 and 1923 not only indicates a remarkable increase in the country's buying power but also shows that this growth continues month by month. In every instance the monthly sales in 1924 have shown a substantial increase over the corresponding month in 1923. In June they reached 170,747 which was approximately 10,000 ahead of June sales in the preceding year.

These figures are for retail sales in the United States alone and do not take into consideration the sales made by foreign Ford branches and associated companies, the majority of which assemble cars from American made parts.

Perhaps the most encouraging sign of the times lies in the fact that these sales have been spread very evenly thruout the country and indicate a general prosperity that is not confined to any particular section.

TOLL OF DEATH
WIPES OUT FEUD

Latest Killing in Colson-Ball
Warfare in Kentucky
Nearly Closes Chapter.

Lexington, Ky.—The most efficacious way of stopping the mountain feud apparently is by killing off the fighters. This practically has been accomplished in the noted Colson and Ball factional warfare in Bell county. The Colsons have had the worst of it on the surface.

The latest flare in this long story of feudal troubles came the other night, when George Colson went into the drug store in Middletown and found Floyd Ball there. Four witnesses tell substantially the same story. The two men, both known for their determination, began to quarrel. Then Ball is reported to have told Colson to "get out," that he did not want any trouble.

Witnesses say that then Colson reached for his pistol, but Ball, in the nomenclature of the gun user, "beat him to it," and opened fire. Colson was taken to the local hospital, where he died a few hours later.

Ball made no attempt to escape and was arrested immediately. He claimed self-defense.

Feud Marked by Fairness.

The Colson-Ball trouble is not the average factional warfare in the mountains in that the Colsons and Balls are people of culture and possessed of wealth. It is not the case of assassinations in their fight—it has been generally proved to be the case that the battlers met each other and with guns in hand fought it out, give and take fashion, with luck to the best marksman.

The feud had been quiescent, for a time, until about three years ago, when in a sudden outbreak Ira Ball shot Doyle Colson to death. The enemies champed their bits over that for a little while and then George Colson and Ira Ball met. There was no doubt in the mind of either man that the other meant to kill, so each drew his pistol promptly, but Colson killed Ball. Then the two clans met one summer day in the Bell county courthouse at Pineville.

The trial in which both sides were interested was to be heard, and members of both factions appeared early. Leaders kept the most hot-headed of the gunmen apart, but finally some one made a sharp remark. There was a clash, and in a moment guns seemed to be flashing in every direction.

Riley Ball was slain. Clay Colson, college man and a clean-cut young fellow, was shot, as were Frank Ball and John Hurst of the Ball clan. After a long court trial, during which each side tried to place the blame on the other, Floyd Ball was given a penitentiary sentence for shooting John Hurst in the courthouse battle, but Gov. E. P. Morrow pardoned him.

George Colson was sentenced to the state penitentiary for killing Ira Ball, but his sentence had been reversed and he was awaiting a new trial when he was killed by Floyd Ball.

Colsons' Picturesque Career.

The Colsons have been more picturesque than the Balls. The first of the noted Colsons was Col. David Colson, who 25 years ago was one of the state's leading political figures and prominent in official affairs. He was an officer in the Spanish-American war, having resigned his seat in congress at Washington to go to war. While in his post of duty Colonel Colson offended Ethelbert Scott, another young officer, and Scott, while the two were at Anniston, Ala., in camp, shot Colson. The latter refused to ask that Scott be disciplined, and for a time it was thought the ill feeling had blown over. Scott was a nephew of Governor, later Senator, W. O. Bradley.

Then came the political campaign of 1899, when Senator William Goebel was Democratic aspirant for the governorship. One night Colson and Scott met in the basement of a hotel. Scott was shot to death, as were two or three other men.

86,767 Immigrants
Go to Brazil in 1923

Washington.—According to the immigration department of the Brazilian government, 102,142 persons entered Brazilian ports during 1923, of which 86,767 were immigrants, as against 34,821 in 1922, an increase of 51,946 or 149.2 per cent. This increase is remarkable in face of the conditions ruling during the past year.

The nationalities of the 86,767 immigrants entering are: Portuguese, 31,866; Italians, 15,839; Spaniards, 10,141; Germans, 8,254; Turkish Arabs, 2,480; Syrians, 2,217; Austrians, 2,162; ex-Brazilians, 2,135; Rumanians, 1,928; Poles, 1,105; Japanese, 896; Hungarians, 826; Latvians, 784; Yugo-Slavs, 775; Russians, 774; French, 609; English, 573; Swiss, 564; Czechoslovaks, 539; Argentines, 429; North Americans, 233; Ukrainians, 176; Uruguayans, 166; Lithuanians, 139; Hollanders, 130; Armenians, 128; Greeks, 101; and 633 persons from 30 other nations, making to total of 57 nationalities represented in the total.

GARDEN PARTY

Successful Affair Will Net $145 for
Swimming Pool.

The most brilliant event of the mid-summer was the garden party given Friday evening by the Business and Professional Women's club for the benefit of the swimming pool. The receipts are about $175 and of this it is hoped $145 will be clear.

Thru the courtesy of the county commissioners the party was held on the court house lawn and Sheriff and Mrs. Robert J. Young lent every assistance to make the event the success it was.

There is no more ideal spot and the setting was most picturesque. Gladioli from the gardens of Dr. B. R. Bales beautified the many small tables and electric lights hooded in Japanese lanterns gave the Oriental effect. The program of dance music by the Kibler orchestra was an additional charm which held the crowd until moonlight shed its silvery glow upon the scene.

The club is indebted to the orchestra, Dr. B. R. Bales, Sheriff Young, H. G. Stevenson and Mason Bros., furniture companies, F. A. Lynch, N. G. & W. G. Hamilton, the Circleville Ice Co., Ohio Utilities Co., the newspapers, the commissioners, Carl F. Seitz and the public in general for favors and patronage.

Consumption of Butterflies

The natives of Australia consume every year millions of butterflies. These insects live largely in the mountain rocks. The natives catch them by lighting wood fires, the smoke of which suffocates them. The natives collect them in baskets, put them in the oven and, after having sifted them to get rid of the wings, make them into a sort of tart, much appreciated among connoisseurs.

Colony of New Haven Had First Blue Laws

In 1715 it was ordered by the general court that a suitable man, be appointed to construct a code of laws for the New Haven colony. The appointment fell to Governor Eaton and he was instructed by the general court to study the laws of Massachusetts colony, and also the "Discourse on Civil Government in a New Plantation," by Reverend Mister Gorton, to aid him in his work.

Governor Eaton promptly issued a code of laws, many of which were from the Massachusetts code. Duly presented to the elders of correct jurisdiction, the fruit of the governor's toll was by them approved and passed, says the Detroit News. The general court, moreover, ordered 500 copies to be printed for the New Haven colonists.

At this period of history New Haven was an entirely different and separate colony from Connecticut, the latter being made up of the towns of Hartford, Windsor and Wethersfield and wild adjacent territory.

The term "blue laws," therefore, undoubtedly came from the fact that the first printed laws of either colony, being those of Governor Eaton, were enveloped in blue paper. So the code of Governor Eaton comprised the real and original blue laws and since these were enacted for New Haven colony it is further established that they should be called the "blue laws of New Haven colony" and not of Connecticut. The laws of other colonies were also used in constructing the code and many of them are at the present time upon the statute books of Connecticut. Many of the better laws of that state today are founded on them.

Monarch Bows Before Mayor of London City

All English towns cling to ancient traditions, ancient rights, some of which, of course, are maintained because of legal necessity, writes Temple Bouverie in World Traveler Magazine. The city of London always has been tenacious and jealous of its old rights. In the "good old days" the stout city fathers didn't hesitate to oppose, and fight if necessary, the king himself. Even nowadays, when the king visits "The City" (which is what you call "downtown," where the banks and the big traders hang up their hats) on days of ceremony he surrenders his sword—only by gesture, it is true—to the lord mayor of London, who meets him at Temple Bar. In days of old, when kings were bolder, the doughty bankers and merchants of "The City" weren't taking any chances and wouldn't stand for the king with armed men passing the gates that marked the city's frontier.

Today, the lord mayor, representing the ancient liberties and rights of his mighty city, is given the password of the Tower of London by the governor of the Tower under "the king's sign manual," which is to say that King George actually puts his "John Hancock" to the list of words making up the military password over a period of three months.

Freezing Eyeglasses

Since optical glasses cannot be cut unless they are fixed in an immovable position, it has been the practice to glue them to iron frames of various sizes and shapes. Until a few years ago the plates of glass, when finished, were knocked off the frames by means of a light mallet, the blow being delivered cautiously upon the edges of the plates. Naturally enough, this was a delicate and dangerous bit of work, and unless performed by the most expert of workmen, resulted, of course, in the injury of the lens. But the discovery was made that the blocks of crystal separated more readily when they had been exposed to a certain degree of cold. The result has been what might be called a revolution in the making of special glasses.—Washington Star.

Obsolete Documents

The folding rooms of the capitol are filled with thousands of publications that are either obsolete or worthless for public distribution, the public printer declares. In the storage vaults of the capitol may be found annual reports on finance dating as far back as 1876, agricultural yearbooks of the crop of 1879 (although new additions are printed at the rate of 400,000 copies annually), reports on the Paris exposition of 1878, ten-year-old nautical almanacs, prayers of the chaplain of the Sixty-second congress, army regulations dating back to 1835 and thousands of obsolete congressional directories.

Knew Their Origin

A young woman recently received instruction in the art of Indian basketry, and had made several copies of Indian baskets of which she was very proud. A friend, who had been living in Arizona, called upon the young woman, who showed the baskets with considerable pride.
"They are really very well done," commented the visitor, "but, of course, they are not the real Indian baskets."
"Why, Mrs. Robinson," indignantly exclaimed the maker, "how can you say that when I just told you that I made them myself!"

$22,000,000 IN ANNUAL INTEREST CHARGES SAVED

United States Treasury Issues New Securities to Take Place of High-Rate Paper.

Washington.—The June fiscal operations of the treasury, while ranking among the smallest of postwar financial issues, will have a wider permanent effect in the way of cuts in fixed expenditures of the government than most of the quarterly operations in the last five years.

Treasury experts have calculated that a saving of approximately $22,000,000 in annual interest charges will result from the change in the public debt situation accomplished in June.

About $40,000,000 in new securities have gone on the market from the treasury this month, but proceeds from these with balances on hand and payments in the second tax installment will retire something like $443,000,000 in treasury notes and tax certificates which matured June 15.

The tax certificates bore 4 per cent and the treasury notes, which were issued in 1921, carried 5½ per cent interest. The new certificates pay only 2½ per cent interest, the lowest rate of any government security since the issue of Panama canal bonds.

At the same time the British government made a payment of $69,000,000, which, under the law, must be used to retire the American wartime debt. That payment therefore will cut off $69,000,000 of Liberty bonds bearing an average of almost 4 per cent interest.

While the cut in the total debt brought about by this one operation appears as a drop in the bucket when considered alongside the national debt of more than $21,000,000,000, treasury officials point with satisfaction to the amount of interest that would have to be paid, and that means taxes to be raised, provided there was no reduction in the debt.

The treasury has issued only $150,000,000 in new securities, while it has retired and destroyed a total of $521,000,000 in outstanding debt.

U. S. Army Doctors Find Whooping Cough Cure

No longer must fond mothers wait for the ailment to "run its course"—a traditional "course" of six weeks. Army ingenuity and chlorine gas will send Johnny and Mary back to school in four-days' time.

Experiments at Edgewood arsenal, Md., where the Chemical Warfare service has its laboratories, have established the efficacy of chlorine gas for a number of bronchial ailments.

The whooping cough treatment is very like that which President Coolidge took in Washington for his cold. The only difference is that it requires an hour's inhalation of gas for four successive days—and that the ratio of gas and air is slightly varied.

Coincident with the announcement of the new cures, army physicians predicted that a few years will see a special gas chamber in every school, with specially trained nurses to administer the treatment. The result, they say, will be a higher standard of health among school children and the virtual disappearance of bronchial and nasal epidemics.

Sexton a Useful Man, Rings Bell, Writes Boy

Munich.—Schoolboys in a Munich suburb were instructed recently to write a composition about the sexton in the local church, and the following effort attracted so much attention that it is being reproduced in many Bavarian newspapers:

"The sexton is a useful man. He rings the bells at five in the morning so the people know they may sleep two hours longer. At eleven he rings the bells again, indicating to the farmers in the field that they should become hungry. In the evening there is more bell ringing, which indicates to small children that they will get their ears boxed if they do not run home rapidly. Sometimes the sexton is very troublesome, especially when he rings at night to announce a fire. The sexton thrives on weddings, christenings and the dead. He earns the most money through death. Therefore he is glad when many people die."

Nigerians Prospering Under Rule of British

London.—An example of the benefits of rule by a large power over an indigent people is found in the case of the British domination in Nigeria, says Sir Hugh Clifford, the Nigerian governor, who is in England on leave.

The natives of Nigeria for the most part are peaceful and contented and living on a scale of life they have never known before, Sir Hugh says.

The British rule has destroyed the slave trade and stopped tribal warfare, with the result that the people are expending their energies in other and more beneficial directions. They have become good farmers or industrial workers and are capable of operating farms without government supervision.

The most noticeable effect of British rule, however, has been in the commerce of the colony. The exports now average nearly $50,000,000 annually, which is ten times the estimated value for 1913.

Like French Mode With Few Changes

American Women Favor Silhouette and Trimming Offered by Paris.

The burden of going forward has shifted from the ingenious hand of the Paris designer to the graceful shoulders of the fashionable woman, observes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune. A short time ago the Paris couturier was industriously offering his artistic product to a waiting world. New ideas, some quite radical, were exhibited—certain old motifs were retained, and descriptions and sketches of the new Paris suggestions were broadcast to wherever smart women gathered. The readers know that the new Paris silhouette is straight and affectedly simple, that French skirts miss the ground by some fourteen inches, that elaboration is the essence of the current mode and that plait, flounce and tunic are its principal manifestations. They have seen sketches of the beltless frock and of the low waistline, the severe tailleur and the three-quarter length coat. The next and, to most women, the most important phase of the springtime mode concerns the extent to which the recent innovations will be indorsed. For femininity, despite ideas to the contrary, does not leap boldly from one extreme to another, preferring rather to slowly absorb new ideas and adopt them gradually and in a modified form.

Consider first the skirt length, which has been a much mooted question since the revolutionary days of the war. One season long, one season short, its only consistency is its certainty to change. This season Paris has insisted on very short skirts, reaching on an average to no more than eight inches below the knee. It is not surprising that the American woman, the slimness of whose ankles is proverbial, should have espoused this style with some degree of enthusiasm—but, always a little more dignified than the Parisienne, she has tempered her acceptance with a becoming modesty. Admitting the influence of Paris, but subjecting it to domestic revision, the approved skirt length this side the Atlantic has been established at about ten inches above the ground—and it marks a decided improvement both in poise and dignity over the French frocks.

Another instance wherein the word of Paris was accorded something less than its wonted reception concerns the tailored suit. Not that there has been any hesitancy about accepting the O'Rossen styled costume. Far from it. The trim, severe lines, the short hip-length jackets and above all the splendidly conceived materials of the Paris-designed tailleur place it in the front ranks of the new clothes. But in France the suit is a necessity, an absolute essential. No Parisienne dares complete her wardrobe without at least one of these mannish costumes, which is not the case on these less impulsive shores. Whether from a fear that the suit would become vulgarized through a too extended vogue, or from a sense of innate conservatism, the fact remains that the response of the American woman to the rigidly tailored vogue has not nearly measured up to expectations. Of course it's a safe acquisition—the severe suit will be decidedly en vogue this season and even more so next—but it is not prescribed. And if it doesn't become you, you may neglect it in your new outfit and have no qualms about being demode.

Silhouette and Trimmings. As to the silhouette and the trimming details of the new Paris dresses, they have been indorsed without qualification. The slim outline is even more acceptable this side of the Atlantic than in Paris, inasmuch as the typical American girl has more youthful proportions.

Yet we dare this prophecy: Along about the middle of the season there will be a reaction toward a more involved silhouette, perhaps bouffant, perhaps flaring to one side, and with it, as a necessary consequence, will come a greater simplicity of trimming.

The certain prevalence of the short skirt for spring has placed an added importance on the new footwear. Shoe styles change with lightning rapidity, and this season a wealth of entirely new ideas is offered.

Lines are sharply drawn between daytime and evening slippers and the same type of shoe is not appropriate for both occasions. For informal wear, with short skirts and youthful lines, short and medium vamps in combination with medium toes are worn, while

The medium point is en vogue in the evening. The cut-out effect, with one or two straps, is a universal and invariable note at all times.

Among the fashionable leathers for daytime lizard is the most emphasized. Alligator, despite much propaganda, is quite out of the picture. The popular suedes are brown and gray—but decidedly not black, which is both clumsy and demode. For wear with black cloth—and black is widely worn this season—black patent kid, trimmed with white piping, is both smart and effective. When the color scheme of the costume is brown, tan shoes trimmed with brown, gold or white are appropriate. The bronze shoe is back after a prolonged absence and is worn in conjunction with brown-hued frocks.

In the evening fancy suedes are far and away the most important shoe fabric. Blue shades predominate, challenged closely by green and red in the order named. Gold and silver kids, both as a trimming on the suede and as the basic leather of the shoe, are widely noted. The smartest combinations among the satins are black trimmed with silver kid and brown trimmed with gold kid.

Decorated Footwear.

It is most important to bear in mind, in connection with the question of your new evening shoes, that the color of the dress must be closely approximated in the slipper—the smartest and most modish ensemble touch of the season joins evening dress and shoes in an identity of color.

It is evident that the most popular type of shoe for the country club will be the white suede slipper trimmed with lizard.

Just as in the other branches of costume, the most important theme of the new shoes is the trimming thereof. And the distinguishing note of this detail is the size of the ornamentation. For daytime wear small trimmings are employed, while the elaboration of the evening slipper is expressed in large motifs.

Buckles, in varying shapes and sizes, are the most important of the shoe accessories. They are made from numerous materials—some are steel, either plain or studded with rhinestones, some bronze, others enamel and some few are developed in the finest of leathers. The tendency is away from the steels and toward the more striking effects such as brilliant studded with colored stones. In addition to the conventional square, oval and round buckles there are novel wing motifs, butterflys, crescents and snakes.

The jeweled heel is the dernier cri of the evening mode. The heel itself is more conservative and much more subdued than in the immediately preceding seasons, but this comparative severity is more than compensated for by the garish brilliance of the studded jewels. These stand out on dull backgrounds in vivid sparklings of red, green and blue.

Stockings for afternoon wear feature the beige shades with their interesting versions of the much-wanted taupe variation. The leading evening colors are gazelle, albino, rose and blonde. The fabric of the stocking is chiffon, almost without exception—and it is the sheerest and most fragile type of chiffon.

Cause for Thanks

"I met a real optimist the other day," said the physician, "a fellow to whom I certainly doff my hat. He had lost a leg in a railroad accident, and when they picked him up the first thing he said: 'Thank God it was the with the rheumatism!'"—Harp magazine.

Owls Much Help to All Farmers

Birds Are Useful in Destroying Moths, Caterpillars and Other Insects.

Is it not strange that we do not see more owls, since they are such useful birds on the farm? I shall never forget the first time I saw an owl; it was exactly like a bundle of soft, grayish-white feathers, says a writer in the Montreal Family Herald and Star. As it flew from the gable of the farmhouse to a neighboring elm tree I could see nothing but feathers, no beak or claws or head. It alighted on the elm branch and kept perfectly still, so still that presently a little field mouse passed that way and never knew the owl was there, watching, till it found itself whirled aloft. The owl swooped down so quickly and picked up the mouse so swiftly that probably the poor little mite hardly knew anything at all about what was happening.

Habit of Owls.

It is always difficult to find out anything about the habits of owls; they come out only at dusk, when it is impossible to watch them very closely, and their eggs are generally laid in places that are not easy to reach. It happens sometimes that they come for food near our houses, and then we may catch sight of them and their actions. They are very fond of sparrows, and when the young ones are getting ready to leave the nest the owls will often come and steal them. This sounds hard for the parent birds, but it is a good thing for the farmer, for the sparrows are grain-eating birds, and often do a great amount of harm.

Owls help the farmer, too, in getting rid of countless numbers of mice, for they are as fond of mice as of birds. Therefore, if an owl is noticed haunting a house, especially in the country, you may be quite sure he is after either sparrows or mice.

Fond of Rats and Mice.

Owls are sometimes blamed for eating young pigeons, but it is more usually rats that get into the pigeon cote. If the owls are seen near the cote it is most probable that they have seen the rat go in and are waiting for it to come out. Any owl would much prefer a fine rat for his supper to a young pigeon, and as long as there are rats the owls will hunt them and will generally leave the pigeons alone.

Young owls are very fond of moths, and in this way the whole owl family is a great help to the farmer and gardener. We do our best to trap the caterpillars that destroy our flowers and vegetables, but we cannot catch the moths that lay the eggs that turn into these caterpillars. You can understand how useful the owls are in this way when you remember that an ordinary cabbage or yellow-underwing moth will lay about a score of eggs at a time, and that all the caterpillars that hatch out will grow to about an inch long with very big appetites. Besides the moths, owls will eat any other large insect they see on the wing, especially beetles.

The commonest owl is perhaps that known as the Brown or Tawny owl, and the rarest the Little owl, a pretty little white and brown bird nine inches long, that comes out in the daytime more often than the other and larger species.

To Destroy Dock

A sure way to free meadows of dock, if not too thick, is to take a sharp tilling spade, and when ground is soft, go over the meadow, thrust the spade under the roots, give a little pry, and the whole plant can be easily pulled up roots and all. This method injures the grass very little. If a farm is badly infested with dock, it may be necessary to keep up a warfare for several years, but the success will be worth all it costs.

To Prevent Milk Fever

To prevent milk fever the calf should be allowed to nurse for a few days. If that is not done then the udder should not be milked out clean at first, but enough milk should be removed now and then to prevent garget. Milk fever will also be less likely to occur if the secretion of milk is dried off for at least six weeks before calving, exercise is enforced daily, the rich feed greatly lessened, and the bowels kept active.

Curculio Injures Peach

The curculio, a beetle-like insect, punctures the skin of the peach early in its development, and the result is to be seen in malformed fruits and gummy exudations. Spraying with three pounds of arsenate of lead to 100 gallons of water when the shucks are falling is the standard recommendation.

Avoid Too Early Pasturing

Much injury may be done the permanent pasture by too early grazing. It is always a safe plan to let the grass get a good start and the soil become firm before turning the stock on the pasture. Early spring injury will have its effect on the pasture throughout the season.

Test All Seed Corn

Good seed corn is just as essential as any other farm seed, and by the best selection, careful testing and good breeding a better grade of corn can soon be produced, which not only means an increase in yield, but more profit in money to the farmer.

BURGLARS

Several Homes Entered and Clothing and Jewelry Stolen.

The homes of Earl Hoffman, on South Court street; William Knode, on West Huston street; J. M. Woods, on Edison avenue; Bryan Pierce, on West Corwin and Mrs. Sarah Hampp on the corner of Washington and Ohio streets, were entered by burglars at an early hour this morning and articles of value and some money taken.

At the Hoffman home $23 in money, a fifteen jeweled Elgin watch a gray checkered sack coat with fine red and white stripes and red dots interwoven in the cloth were taken. At the home of William Knode, a new white sweater and new pair of shoes owned by Mr. Knode's grandson, Earl Buttermilk were missing. At the home of J. M. Woods a greenish gray colored overcoat, a blue serge pair of trousers, and a light gray soft hat with black band were taken. Bryan Pierce lost 75 cents in money and a package of cigarettes. His trousers were taken outside the door of the home were rifled and left at the door.

The home of Mrs. Sarah Hampp was entered and the burglars went thru the cellar and pantry but did not take anything.

Mrs. Theodore Hatzog, who lives on Elm avenue, saw the hand of the burglar as he was trying to enter one of the homes and she says it was a black hand.

The first report made to the police department was by Mr. Hoffman and this was done when he had arisen and could not find his clothing. This was at three o'clock this morning. The last report was at 5:15 o'clock. In all the cases the houses were entered by the burglar cutting the screen and entering. At the Hoffman home the burglar was heard rumaging around but Mrs. Hoffman thought that it was her husband.

The police department and Sheriff Young will search the negro camps north of this city to see if the stolen articles can be located.

Chicago, July 19.—Charges of assault have been filed by Mrs. Louise Mohley against Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of Robert Franks. Mrs. Mohley said the young men then threw her out of the car.

Columbus, July 19.—George L. Gagle, Jr., told police a youthful bandit had robbed him of his Packard roadster and $25 in money after kidnaping him in front of an East-side drug store and forcing him to drive to a lonely spot 12 miles east of town.
